

GOP Told Time Has Come to 'Stop Appeasing and Start Hitting Back'

By DREW PEARSON

Recess Is Refresher

Despite talk about the boys "needing a rest," real story behind the 10-day Easter recess of the house was that Speaker Sam Rayburn and Majority Leader John McCormack sent their charges home for a "refresher" course.

Rayburn and McCormack were chiefly concerned over another GOP Dixie coalition against repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law, and they thought some elbow-rubbing with the folks at home might be the best preventive. The strategy applies to Republicans from industrial districts as well as Democrats.

Meantime, local AFL and CIO leaders were planning to give the returning politicians a stiff workout during 10-day "vacation."

Rayburn and McCormack are keenly aware that the Taft-Hartley vote will be a crucial test they can't afford to lose, if they are to keep northern city Democrats in line on other administration measures. Ever since the GOP Dixie coalition against rent control, there has been talk of a northern "revolt," or a coalition-in-reverse, in which northern Democrats would gang up with Republicans to block southern farm bills.

Rumbles of Revolt

At a dinner meeting with North and South freshmen Democrats recently, Rayburn and McCormack heard increasing rumbles of "retaliation" against Southern coalitionists. This wasn't all cloakroom whispers. Quite a number of big-city Democrats, who believe in carrying out Truman campaign promises, have spoken out openly.

Among them are freshmen Democrats Anthony Tauriello, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Earl Wagner, of Cincinnati, O., who angrily told McCormack the time had come to "stop appeasing and start hitting back" at southern opponents of the Fair Deal program.

"I've had enough," bluntly asserted Tauriello. "I was elected on the Truman program, and I believe in the whole program. I'm tired of seeing the program delayed and undermined by members of my own party. A lot of us think it's time to start retaliating."

At the dinner, Rayburn and McCormack made strong pleas for harmony. Since then the grumbling has somewhat subsided.

GOP Hope

Oregon's bushy-browed Sen.

Wayne Morse, considered a black-sheep by old guard Republicans, nevertheless has a strong though secret following in congress.

This group not only takes its political cues from Morse, but is quietly boosting him for the vice-presidency in 1952. He is the only Republican, they feel, who can take votes away from the Democrats in their greatest stronghold—labor.

Leaders of the Morse movement include such congressmen as John Phillips, of California, H. R. Gross, of Iowa, and James Golden, of Kentucky—all progressive Republicans. Of their support until he was invited to talk off-the-record the other day before a gathering of about 20 Republican congressmen.

With characteristic bluntness, Morse tore into the ills of the Republican party.

"I speak only of the senate," he declared, "but in the senate, we have a few who hold policy meetings. The rest of us read about it next morning in the papers and are called together at 10 o'clock to confirm it."

He accused GOP leaders in congress of playing turtle during the last election.

"It wasn't Dewey's job to defend the 80th congress," said Morse. "It was up to our top leaders in congress. A lot of them suffered political laryngitis."

As for the GOP stand on labor, Morse snorted: "We've got an antilabor label on our party, and we'll keep it until we liberalize the Taft-Hartley law."

Barkley Humor

Vice-President Alben Barkley brought down the house with this story at President Truman's "harmony" dinner with freshmen congressional Democrats. Here is the Barkley story:

A minister sermonizing to his flock on the virtues of friendship inquired if there were any members of the congregation who could honestly say they had no enemies. An aged man with a long beard arose in the rear of the church.

"Ah, I am glad to see that there is at least one among us who can answer my question," beamed the minister. "How old are you, sir?"

"One hundred and four years."

"That's truly remarkable," said the reverend. "Do you mind telling us how you have managed to be without enemies in such a long life span?"

"Because," said the old man, "I outlived them all."

BLIZZARD BABY . . . This week the Jack and Jill editor wants to introduce James Michael Beha (left), 4½-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Beha, of O'Neill. James Michael was the first baby of the new year and therefore winner of The Frontier's annual "first baby" contest. He will be able to tell his grandchildren of his timely arrival, even though it was during one of the worst blizzards in many years. James Michael was whisked to his home so fast "between storms" that The Frontier didn't have an opportunity to get his picture. On the right is little Miss Rosemary Lyons, 2-year-old daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. James Lyons, of O'Neill. Rosemary has blue eyes and reddish blonde hair. She loves to dance to music over the radio and, as far as she is concerned, the English language was written in plural. Rosemary likes to help her mother with the dishes and every time she sees a car leave she wants to go to a party. She has a brother, Randy, who is in kindergarten.

REA Meetings Lively Affairs

"Considerable interest was shown in a series of three rural electrification meetings held in Holt county Monday and Tuesday," according to Ed Wilson, of O'Neill, manager of the Niobrara Valley Electric Membership Corporation, and County Agent A. Neil Dawes, co-sponsors of the sessions.

First meeting was Monday afternoon at the O. A. Hammerberg home in the Celia community. Wiring and utilizing appliances were principal topics.

The Celia Homemakers served cake and coffee after the meeting.

Roy L. DeRose, of Lincoln, extension engineer of the University of Nebraska college of agriculture, assisted in the meeting. The speakers were guests of the Hammerbergs and that evening conducted a similar meeting in the Cleveland church.

Third meeting was held at the Martha school, Southeast of Chambers, Tuesday night. Dawes said that in all three sessions widespread interest was shown and the audience participated in the questions-and-answers.

Kitchen Tour in O'Neill and Atkinson

A kitchen tour, organized by the Holt county extension service, took place Wednesday. A dozen women began the tour in O'Neill and visited kitchens in the homes of Mrs. Ralph Leidy and Mrs. Vern Beckwith. In the afternoon the group moved to Atkinson to visit the kitchens of Mrs. Robert Martens, Lois Ries and Mrs. E. O. Slaymaker.

Originally, stops were to be made at Emmet. Mrs. Mary Elliot, homemaker from the University of Nebraska college of agriculture, and County Agent A. Neil Dawes were on the tour, which gathered members as the day progressed.

New Parking Lot, Drive Being Built

A new cement parking lot is being built for patrons at the New Outlaw Grocery and at the same time a new cement driveway is being constructed for the New Deal Oil Co. The improvement will improve service for patrons of both firms, according to Phil Cohn, of the New Outlaw Grocery, and Tony Asimus, of the New Deal Oil firm.

O'Neill Locals

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Parkinson, of Page, were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orville McKim Saturday for dinner.

Mrs. Howard D. Manson attended a mother-daughter banquet with her mother, Mrs. Sidney E. Anderson, of Elgin, and her sister, Mrs. Ivan Briggs, of Bartlett. It was held at the Park Congregational church, West of Elgin, on Saturday evening.

Market Here Steady with Week Before

There were 310 head of cattle and 450 head of hogs sold last Thursday, May 12, at the Fredrickson Livestock Commission Co. sale here.

The cattle market was about steady with the week before. Replacement cattle were in strong demand but quality was not as good as a week ago. One load of springer cows sold at $158 and looked cheap at that figure.

Some market highlights: Heifer calves, $22 to $24.70; steer calves, $24.50 to $26.50; yearling steers, 600 to 700 pounds, $21.75 to $24.50; feeding cows, $17 to $19; fat cows, $17.50 to $19.50; bulls, $17.50 to $19.35.

Fat hogs top was $18.90—mostly $18.65 to $18.85; 300 pounds, $17 to $18.25; sows, $15.50 to $16.75; feeder pigs, 75 to 125 pounds, $23 to $26; weaning pigs, $11.50 to $18 per head.
