Meanwhile, 37 school teachers from various counties are making the return trip of their six-state Western tour and Monday should have been at Denver, Col. The tourists will arrive back in O'Neill today (Thursday). Elja McCullough, Holt county superintendent, is in charge of the tour.

Pre-opening day will be held Saturday afternoon, August 27, when the dual district school teachers will meet to requisition supplies, be briefed on new school laws and receive their instructions from the county superintendent.

Of the 140 rural districts that indicated a desire to conduct classes this year, to date 40 are without teachers.

Supt. George said the inside of the O'Neill public school is getting a "face lifting" with a fresh coat of paint. The fresh coat of paint was necessary, Superintendent George said, because the school furnace did not function properly last winter and smoked the walls.

While the inside of the public school house was receiving a "face lifting" the school board let a contract Monday to the Reed Roofing company, of Norfolk, to re-roof the old part of the school building. Work will begin in approximately a week, according to Dr. L. A. Burgess, chairman of the school board. The cost of the re-roofing was not disclosed.

Some of the class rooms on the top floor must be plastered and then painted after re-roofing has been completed. The plastering and painting of the class rooms will be done piece-meal through the fall term until finished.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Hicks returned Wednesday to their home in Holdrege after visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hicks. They motored to Pickstown Sunday.

RAY PEASE IS NAMED 'MR. HAY'

Zahradnicek-Jonas Hailed World's Champion Hay Cablers

ATKINSON—Culmination of the thrilling 1948 Hay Days celebration was climaxed here Thursday, August 18, with the world's champion hay cabling contest and the identification of Mr. Hay.

World's champion in the hay cabling event were Walter Zahradnicek and Robert Jonas.

Another closing day event of the two-day celebration was the identification of Ray Pease as Mr. Hay. Mr. Pease's wife, Blanche Spann Pease, is the author of the The Frontier Woman.

The highly-contested hay cabling contest had an unscheduled thrill when a tractor upset. Charles Tobias, the driver, was not on the machine when it overturned and he escaped injury.

Four two-man teams competed for the hay cabling title that left the starting point with hay stacks loaded on underslung carriers. The teams proceeded to the points marked with stakes, unloaded the stacks with cables, reloaded and returned to the initial starting point.

Stacks weighing nine tons, slightly over the normal weight, were the cause of some troubles to the participants.

The winners, were handicapped when their cable that was thrown around the stack, cut under the hay and had to be pulled out and passed around the stack again.

The annual hay festivities was inaugurated Wednesday August 17, with the grand parade at which "The Ship of State" and "Peace" floats were co-winners, while "Uncle Sam Holding the World" took second place with the "Horn of Plenty" taking third place honors.

It was erroneously reported in The Frontier last week that "Uncle Sam" had tied for first place.

Other activities the first day were the afternoon presentation of the George Hitchcock's as the 1948 Holt county honor family and the baseball game played between the "spiked" teams of the Atkinson Towners and the O'Neill Rockets. The Towners eked out a 5-1 celebration victory.

Evening activities featured the coronation pageant of Hay King Alex Fricke and Hay Queen Beth Sloan. More than 300 persons participated in the ceremony of the hay days royalty climaxed by a high display of fireworks.

An interesting antedote of the grand parade floats was the re-entry of the winning floats in the Thursday 4-H parade. The "Peace" float, sponsored by the Jarvis Oil Co., consisted of an automobile that had been sprayed with "whiting" and imitation doves placed around the car that were held on by scotch tape.

Following the grand parade Wednesday, August 17, the auto was put on the wash rack. While the white spray was being washed off, the company was told the float had to appear in the 4-H parade the next day. The float had to be practically reconstructed for its re-entry.

The final show on the hay days agenda was the WNAJ Missouri Valley barn dance troupe. The show was originally scheduled on the high school football field but was forced inside because of threatening weather.
