Charles McManus Fatally Injured In Fall From Railroad in Chicago

50 Years Ago
 December 21, 1899

Charles McManus fell from an elevated railroad in Chicago last Saturday afternoon about 1:30 and received injuries which resulted in his death at 6:40 p. m. the same day. He was working with a party of men on the railroad and had just placed a rail in position when he fell forward through the ties and struck the pavement 25 feet below on his head and shoulders, sustaining a fractured skull and arm, besides internal injuries. He was taken at once to the hospital and everything was done to save his life, but the injuries were fatal and he passed away about five hours after the accident. His brother, James, was with him when he died.

Charles was born in Benton, Wis., and was 31-years-old on August 14. In March, 1890, the family moved to O'Neill, Charles coming with them and he lived in this city and in Spencer until the Spring of 1893 when he went to Chicago, where he lived until the time of his death.

His sad death is mourned not only by his relatives, but by all who knew him. His aged mother, brothers and sisters have the sympathy of the community. P. J. McManus left for Chicago Sunday morning and returned with the remains Tuesday night, the funeral being held Wednesday morning. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

At Emmet the cold weather of the last few days has caused a good many of the townspeople to don their full winter regalia as well as purchase a goodly supply of coal. What we would consider a very fortunate accident happened on Tuesday of last week when Section Foreman J. H. Colman, J. J. Short-hill, and W. A. Cosgrove, depot agent, were returning from O'Neill on a gas car where they had been to see the Dempsey-Firpo fight shown at the Royal theater. They saw the light of an approaching train as they were nearing home and thought it to be a through freight and knew that if it was they would have plenty of time to make the tool house ahead of it. Upon nearing town they saw that the train was fast over-taking them and decided to stop and take the car off the track. When they applied the brakes and tried to stop the rails were so icy that they had a difficult time getting the car stopped. They jumped off and in their haste to get the car off did not notice that the train was upon them. Short-hill and Cosgrove were fortunate enough to jump clear of the track but Coleman and Harris, who were at the front end of the car, could not get out of the way and were thrown with the car a little over three rail lengths and landed in the ditch. The train, which proved to be a flier making better than 40 miles an hour, stopped. The boys were picked up by the train crew and taken to the depot while Harris was taken to Atkinson to the hospital and later taken to Norfolk. Aside from a few severe bruises he was unhurt and is able to get around with crutches. Mr. Coleman has gone to his home at Inman and we understand he is coming along as well as could be expected after such a shaking up. He is also on crutches. The boys are congratulating themselves.

Citizens of this city were shocked shortly after noon yesterday when word was received from Omaha that Clyde King had passed away in St. Joseph's hospital about 12 o'clock. The funeral will be held from home on East Douglas street tomorrow afternoon, December 22, at 2 o'clock. The funeral will be in charge of the Masonic lodge of this city of which he was a member. In January of 1891, in company with the writer, we leased the Item, which had been moved from Ewing to O'Neill by Clarence Selah. This
