

Roland Peterson On Scout Journey

STUART — Roland V. Peterson, 14-year-old Boy Scout, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Peterson, left on Friday, June 23, for the 3-day pre-jamboree training at Ft. Omaha.

From there Roland and fellow Scouts will travel by special train to many points of interest in the East before reaching historic Valley Forge, Pa., where Gen. George Washington and his troops survived the winter of 1777.

More than 47,000 Boy Scouts and leaders from America and many foreign countries will live in the tented city from June 30 to July 6.

The Stuart Community club is sponsoring Roland's trip.

JUNE BRIDES—IN '75 . . . These 2 O'Neill babes may be waltzing down the church aisle come June, 1975. But for the present they are the pride and joy of their parents and doting relatives. Mary Kathleen Clark (left) is the 9-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Clark. She lives on a ranch with her parents near O'Neill. You guessed it, she has blonde hair and blue eyes. Peggy Ann Martin (right) is the 8-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Martin, of O'Neill. She has brown hair and blue eyes. Pots and pans in her mother's kitchen fascinate her even more than her bushel of toys.—O'Neill Photo Co.

Top 450-pound calves sold for 29 cents per pound with the plainer types hitting $26 to $28. Some yearling heifers brought from $24 to $26.50. Canner cows sold for 15 to 18 cents per pound with fat cows clearing from $18 to $19.50. Some nice, fleshy, straight barreled cows brought up to 21 cents per pound while bulls hit from $20 to $21.50.

Fireworks Explode in Fire Near Orchard

ORCHARD — A 1941 model truck and $275 worth of fireworks Friday around 4:30 p.m. were destroyed when a fire of unknown origin exploded the load of fireworks of two Stuart men who were on their return trip from Yankton, S. D.

The explosion and fire occurred 2½ miles west of Orchard on highway 20.

Gilbert Shald, the driver of the truck, was reportedly slowing down because of a flat tire when the fire began. Shald escaped without injury.

His traveling companion, Frank Sewel, escaped after he was momentarily stunned.

According to the investigating authority, State Highway Patrolman Fay Robeson, the fireworks were to be used in connection with the Stuart rodeo and celebration July 3 and 4.

Prairieland Talk

Former Governor Dwight Griswold has become a candidate for a place with the university regents. . . . The first reported death from lightning is that of a farmer near Clay Center who received a fatal shock while cultivating corn. . . . The vice-president says it is not the business of congress to run down traitors in the service of the government. Whose business is it? . . . Near a little town in northern Colfax county where I first assumed the responsibility of publishing a newspaper a horrifying killing was reported to have occurred the night of Father's day. The father is believed to have beat the brains out of his wife and 3 children in their beds and then ended his own life. . . . If these gents who are filing for nomination to state office float to victory on the August and November tides Nebraska may expect the golden age to be ushered in. . . . Ernest Adams, custodian of public funds over at Omaha, comes out as a candidate in the Republican primary for the nomination for governor, and says he has the real thing in a program for this state.

There would be more automobile room if the 25-ft. sidewalks were reduced in width, those hoofing it along the street press close to the buildings anyway.

They feel that they are the forgotten ones. But not much can be done to demonstrate that the potato growers out in Scotts Bluff county are part and parcel with the rest of us that makes up the worthy citizenship of this notable state of Nebraska. The panhandle probably gets no less consideration in the matter of a dip into state road funds than does North Nebraska's great grass lands. Many patriots up this way, some 50 miles from their trading post, make their navigation possible with a liberal sprinkling of hay in spots and cut around the worst swamp holes. Not infrequently it becomes necessary to launch out across country and take down fences to get to town and back. There is more or less of an independent class of people in prairieland who take the job of doing for themselves as just a part of life's program.

An Illinois town notified Washington to keep its hands off. That little town had a chance to grab $300,000 for a new postoffice. The chairman of the village board wrote Senator Lucas there were lots of things needed worse than a postoffice in his town, among them a sense of official economy in Washington. There are indications that little by little the handout trail to the citadel of deficit spending may early become grass-grown.

Once a delegation from up here invaded the majestic precincts of the statehouse down at the capital city to register a protest, not to ask for any "state aid" for roads and bridges. The gentleman functioning as tax commissioner at that time sat with his group huddled in a corner while a room full of cowboys from the sandhills made their protests against the schedule of valuations for taxation on range cattle.

Assessor Gillespie, of Holt county, and several from adjoining counties were there to add their voices to that of the cattlemen.

The sentiment was pretty well understood at that meeting that folks up this way will keep their prairie trails negotiable but don't try a Shylock game on our herds.

A gentleman of the cloth representing a church organization put up his sanctuary in a North Nebraska town and advertised meetings with intriguing subjects to begin a certain Sunday evening. The dozen or 15 churches in town that before held no Sunday night services all called their adherents to special meetings on that night. The community should give that newcomer's effort a hearty boost for starting a citywide revival in all the churches.

They may not be leading the procession down in Mississippi in what we Nebraskans regard as progress, but 2 of their state legislators have come forward with a proposal to outlaw tipping. This must strike the responsive emotions of every citizen who has to do with functionaries in public places. If the Mississippians adopt such a measure with severe penalties the idea should take root elsewhere. When you have laid down the cash that in itself is a holdup your are not in much of a mood to hand out tips.

A new thing on the labor front is announced from St. Louis, Mo. An employment agency will furnish bonded baby sitters to parents who want to have a night out. This new and fascinating occupation may soon be entrenched with the CIO or AFL and demand a kidnaper's ransom or no sit.

Painted warriors formerly crawled upon a victim where the capital city now sprawls. Yesterday a stalwart Indian gent swung along O street with swinging strides, text books and note paper under his arm.
