LONG LINE . . . A clothes line 100 miles in length would have been required to dry the 1,500,000 pieces of linen used by Shriners occupying Pullman sleeping cars in their round trip journey and during their convention at Los Angeles, Calif. Few American housewives would exchange their Monday wash day chore for the staggering job that faces the Pullman Company each day of the week. Even 4-year-old Tory Crawford, of Los Angeles, has the blues as she stares forlornly at a mountain of sheets.

McCarthy's $10,000 Part of Millions RFC Advanced to Lustron Corporation

By DREW PEARSON

A Maine Joke—

Eavesdropping is an old family pastime with Maine's Sen. Owen Brewster who, as this column revealed, tapped the telephone wires of California airplane manufacturer Howard Hughes.

More than 3 years ago—February 18, 1947, Senator Brewster appeared before a judiciary subcommittee to oppose the appointment of John Clifford as U. S. district judge for Maine. The senator explained that Clifford came to Brewster's hotel room to discuss a local housing problem.

"He said he would come up to my hotel room and see me," Brewster continued. "I did something which I have never done before, and I do not think I will ever do again. We had 2 rooms at the hotel, the door open between, and I asked Mrs. Brewster to listen to the conversation."

Since then it's been a standing joke in Maine whenever anyone mentions having a talk with Senator Brewster to ask: "And was Mrs. B. standing behind the door?"

Diogenes' Lantern—

Most congressmen are scrupulously honest about taking gratuities for introducing legislation for their constituents—unlike Congressman Wood, of Georgia, whose office collected $10,000 for passing a bill compensating Ralph Stanfield after he was crippled by a U. S. army truck.

For example, when Senator Sparkman, of Alabama, was still a congressman, he introduced a private bill to compensate a constituent who also had been injured by an army truck. The constituent was so grateful that he deposited $500 in the bank in Sparkman's name and sent the deposit slip to Sparkman.

This was promptly returned, however, with a courteous note, thanking the constituent but asking him to keep his money.

After Sparkman changed the deposit back to the constituent's name, the bank returned the worthless deposit slip to Sparkman. Across it was scribbled: "At last Diogenes can put down that lantern."

This referred to the Greek philosopher who carried a lighted lantern around in mid-day, searching for an honest man.

McCarthy's $10,000—

There may be more than meets the eye behind the $10,000 paid to Sen. Joe McCarthy, of Wisconsin, by the now bankrupt Lustron corporation for writing a 7,000-word booklet on housing.

It's well known that the $10,000 the Lustron people paid McCarthy was part of the RFC millions which the government advanced to Lustron. Thus, in effect, all the American taxpayers helped to subsidize the senator from Wisconsin.

But not generally known is that McCarthy had done a terrific job for the real estate lobby prior to receipt of the fee. Not only had he engaged in a tenacious, vitriolic battle against the housing bill—a battle just as tenacious as his present row over alleged communism in government—but he also dominated the appointment of a house-senate housing committee supposed to investigate the need for public housing.

In the closed-door battle over the appointment of this committee, in October, 1947, Senator Tobey, of New Hampshire, chairman of the banking and currency committee, turned up with the proxies of 4 senators in his pocket. All 4 would have voted against McCarthy.

Whereupon McCarthy moved that the committee refuse to honor proxies. Such a refusal is almost unheard of in congressional committees. However, McCarthy had a scant majority of the committee with him, and got away with it. He then obtained the appointment of New York's Congressman Gamble, a foe of housing, as chairman of the housing committee, with himself as vice-chairman.

It was as vice-chairman that McCarthy spent the taxpayers' money to tour the country studying housing, and later cashed in on that trip by getting $10,000 from the Lustron corporation.

Though McCarthy now states he sold his article to the highest bidder, actually, according to Lustron officials, McCarthy pleaded for more dough.

His income tax for 1948 may show the reason why. As filed in the state of Wisconsin, McCarthy's tax return shows his total income was $26,947, including his senate salary of $12,500 plus the $10,000 from Lustron, plus $4,535 in dividends from the Milwaukee and the Central of Georgia railroads. However, McCarthy also lists losses to the tune of $25,881 which he claimed from the sale of securities of the same railroads.
