"Happy Mom" Wants to Know If There's a Job Paying Greater Dividends

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Hi there, all you penny saving people—and aren't we all? Give your pies a streamlined twist during the sunshine months. Feature cookie crusts with pie fillings made from packaged puddings and ready-made ice cream. For the quickest pie shell ever made, use whole cookies. Simply place them around the sides and on the bottom of a pie plate, cutting them if necessary to make them fit. Choose chocolate ice box wafers, vanilla wafers, ginger snaps or chocolate nutmeg cookies.

Blanche Spann Pease

The illustrated timesaving pie shell, calls for whole and crushed chocolate ice box wafers. Whipped cream, folded into prepared butterscotch pudding, gives fluffiness to the filling.

SUNSHINE SUMMER PIE

(Makes 1 9-inch pie)

One package butterscotch pudding mix; 1 1/2 cups milk; 1/2 cup heavy cream (whipped); 1 chocolate ice box wafer pie shell, toasted sliced almonds. Place pudding mix in a saucepan and gradually add milk, stirring until mixture is smooth. Cook directly over medium heat, stirring constantly, until pudding thickens and starts to boil (about 4 minutes). Let mixture cool to room temperature. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into chocolate ice box wafer pie shell. Garnish top with a ring of toasted sliced almonds.

Happy Mom's Letter—

Dear Blanche:
Guess it's all right to air "pet peeves, isn't it? Well, here's one that really got under my skin. I'll bet there's lots of other mothers who feel the same way.

Some time ago, I went into a store to make a purchase. I had my children with me, all scrubbed and clean and looking very nice. (Of course, I am their mother and they probably do look cuter to me than to anyone else.) They were behaving nicely, too.

A clerk came up to wait on me. She looked from one shining face to another and then back to me with a rather disgusted query, "Are they all yours?"

Some how she made both the children and myself feel very let down. I didn't make my purchase in that store. No, I went across the street to a pleasant "Well, hello there, Mrs. Brown, how's the family today?" That's where I made my purchase. Some how I feel if my children aren't welcome in a store (when they're not making a disturbance), I just don't like to be there, either.

You see, lady, we all like each other a great deal and all think every one of us is pretty special. My prayer is that I may be the kind of mom that will make their childhood happy.

Why feel sorry for me? I don't feel sorry for myself. I'm a very lucky mom and here's why:

I've been blessed with some very precious darlings to make life worthwhile and to keep me busy, happy and from just being plain bored. From baby to "little big sis" we share, work and play, yes, and even squabble together and have lots of fun doing it. Golly, wouldn't life be dull if I had to knit or crochet to take up my time? No, I don't want sympathy, I know when I'm lucky!

My life is far from dull. No there's more excitement for me every evening than could be found in an expensive night club. And talk about humor, well, I've got that, too. How about the time Jerry said "Did you really go to school, Daddy?" And the time Jane said "Mom, was George Washington really good looking?"

"No, I've excitement and humor, plus!

And variety! Well, I've got that, too. Did you ever try cinnamon peas? Well, we have, you see small Patty sprinkled a generous supply of cinnamon on them just as they were ready to be served. I don't recommend them. You never know what you might find in bed, either. It may be a teddy bear, a truck or a squeaky toy that will give you quite a thrill, when you sit down to remove your shoes. And finding your best oxfords with the laces all laced on one side when you're in a rush to get to town. That's variety enough to keep life interesting, don't you think?

My life is full, too. True, I don't have a lot of money or fancy clothes. But just show me another job that pays bigger dividends. Who'd trade clothes or money for the smiles and down to earth happiness a 1-year-old can give, the hugs and kisses of a 4-year-old, the chats and chumminess of an 8- and 10-year-old. No, fussy clothes and such will pass but joys and memories such as mine will live forever.

So here's my answer. Yes, lady, they're all mine, every precious one of them. And let me tell you that I'm not only the proudest and happiest mother in the world, I'm the richest, too. For I have been blessed with "heaven's most precious jewels."

"HAPPY MOM."

O'Neill Letter—

Dear Mrs. Pease:

It's a nice, quiet, cool afternoon, which makes this an appropriate time to write letters. So far I have written 2 and thought I'd try the third one to you. I have secretly enjoyed your column in The Frontier for over a year now, also letters and recipes sent in by other readers.

Have been busy housecleaning, gardening, along with cooking meals. It seems so hard to satisfy the hunger these days, but now that the vegetables are coming on in the garden this job of planning meals will be easier.

When you bake an angel food cake, how do you use up the yolks? I have a cookie recipe, bake and a mayonnaise recipe I use. I am including the mayonnaise recipe. If anyone wants the cookie or cake recipe, may be I can send it in another time.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING

Yolks of 12 eggs, 2 tablespoons oil or cornstarch, 1 1/2 cups of sugar, 1/2 cup dry mustard 1 pint vinegar diluted with 1/2 cup of water, 1 tablespoon salt. Mix the sugar, flour and mustard together in the top of a double boiler. Stir in the rest of the ingredients, mixing well. Cook until thick, pour into sterilized fruit jars. Keep in the refrigerator. When wanted to use, whip the amount of cream needed and fold in enough dressing as desired.

Wish some one would send in new ways of using green beans. I like the poem "What are little boys made of" sent in by a busy mother. I have 3 grandsons that live up to it very much, especially the perpetual motion part.

I have a box I keep toys in, so my grandchildren or any other child that comes to our house can play with them. Children are always looking for something to play with. Remember to put some toys that tiny children can use, too.

Will draw this to a close and if it escapes the hungry jaws of the wastebasket, will be back MRS. WILLIAM J. MURPHY.

SOS For Letters—

We need letters for The Frontier Woman. We are getting barely enough. Why don't you write us one? Write about anything you like. If your letter is used, we will award you a 3-months' subscription to The Frontier and we try to use 2 letters each week. Send your letters to Mrs. Blanche Pease, The Frontier Woman, Atkinson.

SANDHILL SAL

When I'm discouraged with my finger, it encourages me to look at some one bigger. I can't see a single reason for a flea, but I reckon I would if I were he.

It is astonishing the ends to which some people will go to get even with somebody. And the person really hurt the worst is themselves.

See the Rodeo Champions in Action this Month

Daring rodeo riders and ropers are thrilling the crowds at fairs and celebrations all over Nebraska this month.

These skilled performers reached stardom only after years of observation and practice. They studied the performance of experts, learning how to do exactly the right thing at the right time.

Likewise, the tavern owners of Nebraska learned how to conduct their business in the public interest by carefully observing and studying the successful methods of others.

As the result, they have become better operators . . . and better citizens.
