Redbird Reader Grateful Her Area Escaped Hail Storms and Floods

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Hi there, all you tall, dark and handsome, short, fat and likeable people! I know you're all mighty busy at your house this week, because all of us are. Canning has reached its peak.

If you're making pickles you might like to know that grape leaves added to the pickles while you are brining them, will give them a good green color. The same is true when you can pickles by the quick method, adding the green grape leaves will give the pickles a good, green, harmless, color.

To prevent discoloring of apples when you are making applesauce, remember to cook them in an enamel or granite-ware kettle and to stir with a wooden spoon.

When I can applesauce, I like to add half a cup of crushed pineapple, to very quart of apple sauce. You have a much more flavorful product this way.

When you are peeling peaches for canning, dip them into vinegar-salt water. Use 2 tablespoons of each to 1 gallon of cold water. This will keep them from discoloring. Rinse them before canning.

You can add flavor to canned pears by various methods. For instance, use the juice and rind of half an orange to each quart of syrup. Remove the rind before packing pears.

For cinnamon pears use 2 to 3 tablespoons red hots to each quart of syrup.

For ginger pears: Use ginger tea (water in which ginger root is boiled) instead of plain water for making syrup.

For pineapple pears, use pineapple juice instead of water for making the syrup. And for plum pears use tart, red plum juice instead of water for making pears.

Subscription Winners—

A "Stuart Reader" wins one of our 3-months' subscriptions today. The other goes to "A Farmer's Wife," of Redbird, Nebraska.

Dear Mrs. Pease:

Pickling time is drawing around again, and I thought perhaps Frontier readers would like some pickle recipes.

PERFECT DILL PICKLES
Twelve to 13½ cups water, 6 to 6¼ cups vinegar, 1 cup salt. Boil 15 minutes. Pack cucumbers in jars with lots of dill, add 1 tablespoon sugar to each quart. Do not boil sugar. Pour the boiling vinegar brine over the cucumbers. Fill to tops of jars and seal tight. Set the jars into boiling water to come over the tops of the jars. Let stand until cold. These are crisp, do not ferment and stay nice and clear.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

Take 12 large cucumbers, sliced, and 6 onions, sliced. Soak separately 1 hour in salt water. Take 2 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon mustard seed, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 1 teaspoon turmeric, 3 cups vinegar, 1 cup water. Add cucumbers and onions, boil 10 minutes and seal.

PIMIENTO PICKLES

Slice cucumbers and soak in ice water over night. In morning, pack into jars, a layer of cucumbers 2 inches thick, a teaspoon of ground pimiento and a teaspoon of ground onion, then another layer of cucumbers, etc. Then cover with the following: Add 1 teaspoon of celery seed and 1 teaspoon of mustard seed to each quart. Boil 3 cups vinegar, 1 cup water, ½ cup sugar and ½ cup salt. Scant. Cover pickles and seal hot.

Farm Wife Soliloquy—

Dear Mrs. Pease:

Harvest is in full swing on the farm. The alfalfa has been cut for the second time, the grain is in the shock awaiting the threshers who will arrive most any day now, the corn has been laid by for some time and the wild hay crop is being stacked.

This year, on the farm, has been a fruitful one. So far the crops that are harvested have been good, and the ones still in the growing process look very promising. The hail storms and floods that have hit in parts of the country were terrible and we feel fortunate to have escaped them and hope they have worn themselves out by now and do not strike again.

Wasn't July a lovely month? Such nice rains and cool nights for sleeping, so different from the usual hot, dry, windy weather we get in July.

It seems the summer has flashed by us, for soon school children will be starting back to school. I helped clean the schoolhouse this week in preparation for the coming year and it seemed only last week the youngsters came bounding home overjoyed at the prospects of a 3-month vacation. How very true it is that time waits for no man.

The busy housewife has found that "time waits for no woman," too, especially now with canning and a dozen other jobs wedged in to the already full circle of household duties. I guess I have taken up enough of your time. I will send a few Did You Know's and then sign off.

When you heat milk for custards, or puddings, it will not scorch if sugar is sprinkled in the milk.

If you heat lemons in boiling water a few minutes before you squeeze them you'll get twice as much juice.

If you rub a little butter around the top of the kettle the jelly won't boil over.

If you put a teaspoon of butter in the cold juice before you boil it for jelly there will be no scum on the jelly.

If you sprinkle salt in the grease before you put the chicken into it to fry, you'll have less popping on your stove.

SANDHILL SAL

There is a saying that you can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink it. Well, you can tell your wife you're handsome, but you can't make her think it!

I told her she looked like a million. She loved it. The funny part of it was she looked every year of it!

Good luck follows some people all their lives—and some it never catches up with.

The people always looking for 4-leaf clovers would get rich quicker mowing the lawn.
