Aid Child With School Adjustment

It is the responsibility of all parents to aid their child in his adjustment to school life. When a child begins school for the first time, he must be helped to realize that the old world of home and the new world of school need not be separate or at odds with one another.

When a child starts to school he learns right away the meaning of group authority, and he learns respect not only for other persons but time and authority itself. He must coordinate group life with the familiar family life. The child and his parents must learn and accept his limitations.

As for the teacher, she will be concerned about him; but she will also be concerned about so many others and all will command a share of her attention and all will have an equal right to share it.

Physical, mental or emotional handicaps, if not recognized, can make for a poor adjustment. Emotional strains, reflected from the home can enter into the life of the child at school and cause much difficulty.

For instance, some parents have the overwhelming ambition for their child to be first in everything. This can cause a very poor adjustment. Keen competition is healthy, but no amount of nagging or scolding will put a child's name on the honor roll. Indifference to the progress of the child is bad too, for cooperation between the home and the school is lost.

When parents counsel with the teacher, then it is that by working together, a child may develop along lines that are consistent with his ability and his aptitudes.

As a child's changing physical needs are met in the home and in the school, so are his advancing mental and emotional needs cared for, step by step, grade by grade; and at each progressive stage the indicated adjustments, with the help of the parents, fit him to each new situation.

They're Unsung Heroes

Many, many years ago we learned that in the great mass of humanity there are hundreds of thousands, and among our own acquaintances many scores, of heroes and martyrs that the world in general knows nothing about.

There are those who are suffering from physical ailments, but so far as their friends, and sometimes their own families, know, they are enjoying the best of health.

There are those who are a veritable bundle of nerves, but hold themselves in to such an extent that they appear to be the calmest, coolest folks one could know.

There are those who are having financial troubles, but who do not even tell their own families of their difficulties. There are those who appear to be spending all their income on their own immediate families, but unbeknown to their associates, are contributing every month to the care of some needy relatives. There are those who in their own homes carry the burden of a helpless invalid.

And that's why we decided many years ago to try to school ourselves not to jump at conclusions, so far as our estimate of other people is concerned.

Catholic Ladies Schedule Bazaar

LYNCH — Mrs. Guy Mulhair was hostess to the Catholic Altar society Thursday afternoon, October 5, with Pauline Mulhair and Mrs. James Maly as cohostesses.

Mrs. Harold Bennett was a visitor. Plans were made to hold a bazaar in connection with a Thanksgiving food sale on Saturday before Thanksgiving.

Carsteen-Mills Vows Exchanged

LYNCH—Eldon Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mills, of Lynch, and Miss Alice Carsteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chet Carsteen, were married Friday, October 6.

Mrs. Mills has been clerking in a Bonesteel, S. D., store since graduation from the Lynch high school and the bridegroom has been engaged in farming. A free wedding dance was given in Lynch Friday evening.

United Nations Becomes Increasingly Involved in Fog of Men Beating Air

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS

LINCOLN — To the ordinary law reverring citizen the devious ways of justice are sometimes baffling. A gent states under the combined extradition action of two governors. I don't know just what he had done but whatever it was, why was not the "incident closed" and he allowed to remain with his family and friends in Nicaragua, thus relieving our penal institutions of one less scapalifer?

A Lincoln paper jumped with glee upon a document this man had written as a plea in habeas corpus because of an extra letter "V" in an otherwise scholarly and logical setting forth of certain facts.

Wars in this, our generation, have taken a toll of 86,000,000 killed or wounded. In 1945 the nations gathered at the city by the Golden Gate when the United Nations was born into a troubled world. I have stood by that Golden Gate, which is anything but golden, where the troubled waters of the Pacific lash in fury against the cliffs, where fog rests in gloom and tugs are constantly alert to save the ocean-going traffic from being wrecked on the rocks. At that meeting in San Francisco delegates saw the golden glow of one world at peace. Like that entrance to the harbor, shrouded mostly in gloom, the dreams of the United Nations become more and more involved in the fog of men beating the air to find a way out.

Home Administration funds were drawn upon as loans by 1,186 Nebraska farmers the past fiscal year, 58 percent of these being veterans. These funds are made available as government loans to assist young men to get a start on the land.

Now comes the story of a woman up in Canada with holes in her hands and feet, pierced side and thorn marred brow that bled at 6 o'clock every Friday. The day of the crucifixion is right but the alleged demonstration is 3 hours off. If it were a man instead of a woman it would be more realistic. In all the history of crucifixions no woman had so to suffer, only as the few devout women suffered at the sight of what sneering priest and hardened soldier did at Golgotha.

"All of us know what are the virtues of good citizenship and good government," writes one observer at the nation's capital.

Millions Now Follow "The Series"

"Play by play" action of the World Series now is radioed and televised to millions who cannot attend this great sports event. Young and old alike are familiar with the famous athletes who compete, the "name" coaches whose long experience helps younger players develop into stars, and with the team play that wins pennants.

Nebraska tavern men, too, employ team work in improving their operations. They learn by experience—their and other tavern owners—and by cooperating in the educational program conducted by the U.S. Brewers Foundation. By practicing the teaching of industry "coaches," they strive to conduct their places so as to gain public approval, essential to modern tavern operation.

"They are thrift and self-reliance and independence and honest ability, a sense of responsibility toward the community and that human dignity which goes with achievement and responsibility. And above all, perhaps a respect for the intelligence of one's fellow citizens. We have had very little of these virtues in Washington for a long time."

A former president of the Nebraska Bar association, adressing a group of disciples of Blackstone recently, said the lawyer defending a criminal was doing so because of the right of every man to a fair and impartial trial in the courts. We understand there is more money for a lawyer defending a scallawag than prosecuting him.

A young Lincoln girl and her mother have been put to a strain to know whether to accept a bribe of $4,000 when they need money badly and swear to a lie in court to free a young devil from the consequences of his acts or tell the truth.

Truth has triumphed and to a sordid story of a group of young men caught in villainous comes now a story of attempted bribery of the complaining witness.
