It's Time to Personalize Your Home

MANY people today have more skill as house-furnishers than as home-makers. Intent upon the efficiency and space-saving necessary to modern living, they forget to add the final small touches that give a house personality.

Perhaps grandmother overdid things—but when you walked into her house you could tell whether she was handy with her crochet needles, or whether her talents ran to china-painting and indoor cultivation of geraniums.

No matter how handsome a decorator's sketch may appear, it's a mistake for you to copy it in every detail. Your home should reflect you—and your own individual likings.

In today's hustle and bustle, take time for little extras. Cover your stools with needlepoint, if that's your taste, or your walls with impressionistic paintings if your leanings are more modern.

Take your favorite pitcher out of your china cupboard; fill it with flowers and place it on the hall table for everyday enjoyment.

Hang that handsome plate you received for a wedding present upon the wall, instead of hoarding it for semi-annual dinners.

It's a good idea to strive toward graciousness as well as personality in your house. To make your guests like you, as well as your home, remember small courtesies like fresh fingertip towels in the bathroom, books on the bedside table, or a special set of cosmetics in the drawer of the guest-room vanity.

This guest enjoys her stay in a house that has both personality and graciousness. Fingertip towels, fresh daily, add to the home's hospitable atmosphere and enhance the decor of the bathroom.

The Frontier Woman— Boxes Piled High in 2-Room Apartment Resemble Rear of Grocery Store

BY BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Greetings to one and all. It will soon be time to watch for the tulips and hyacinths to come up.

Did you plant any tulips last fall? We put out 60 new ones, two or three different kinds of parrot tulips, and quite a variety of colored ones, also some of the early doubles. For the money invested, tulips do not offer very very good returns. At least, they don't at our house, they run down so quickly. Even the sturdiest type did little for us last year. But when spring comes the heart is so hungry for color that a few tulips mean more than a profuse assortment of flowers will later on.

Daffodils or narcissus give you a much better return for the money. I have about 40 purchased 3 or 4 years ago that are nicer and there are more of them each spring. We put out 75 more of them of all different kinds last fall. Daffodils need only to be dug up every few years and they multiply and become larger, too.

They are quite hardy and usually bloom before the tulips, their colors are so attractive and sprightly, too.

Of course, we look forward to the iris season. Barring a late freeze, about a hundred new iris we put out should come into bloom this spring, and possibly some of those planted last summer (I hope so).

So each day, as we rejoice over the blossoming of old iris, there should be iris coming into bloom that are new to us. It ought to be an exciting iris season!

Some of my new ones are Elmohr, Prairie Sunset, Peachblow, China Maid, Great Lakes, Jake (which I had before), Old Parchment, Amigo, Artic, Christabel, Louvois, Wabash and Lady Mohr. Amigo is another new one.

You Can Get Bruised Stumbling Around Furniture—

Mrs. Henry Benze, of O'Neill, wins our 3-months' subscription this week:

O'Neill, Nebr.

Dear Blanche:
Every week I read in your column you need letters badly, so I thought I would do my part and write you a few lines.

Since I last wrote you we have moved from a large seven-room house to two large rooms. And, oh boy, is it ever a chore to try to arrange the furniture so anyone can walk around without getting bruised bumping into furniture and toys! And in one corner of the bedroom we made a storage room and boxes are piled up high, looking like the rear of a grocery store.

When I go to look for something, I dig and dig, boxes fall and the whole house is a mess.

Here are a couple of Easter ideas I like very much:

For your centerpiece on the dinner table, make your favorite cake in layers. Frost with a 7-minute white frosting. Tint some coconut green and while frosting is still not quite set make a nest on the top of the cake with coconut and when frosting is set, add the colored candy Easter eggs and place chocolate bunnies, chickens or the colored candy eggs around plate. The youngsters get a big kick out of this.

Here is a good salad:
Make a nest of shredded lettuce, place half of a canned pear round side up. Add ball of white Dissolve yeast as directed on package. In a large mixing bowl mix together salt, sugar, melted shortening, molasses and liquid (liquid to be lukewarm). Add 2 cups of the flour and beat thoroughly. Then add yeast and beat well. Then add cornmeal, caraway seeds, rye flour and remaining white flour, small amounts at a time until the dough is quite firm.

Knead for several minutes. Put into greased bowl in warm place. Let rise until double. Punch down. Do this twice, then divide dough into 2 parts and place in well greased round bowl with the rough side up. Let rise until double, then turn into greased cake pans and place immediately in a preheated oven at 425 F. for 20 minutes, then 375 F. for 40 minutes. If after baking for 20 minutes at 375 F. the bread seems quite brown, turn to 350. If you prefer, you can place bread in the regular bread pans and do not turn onto other pans. I like the round loaves of bread the best.

I hope these ideas and recipes will help someone.

SUFFERING IN SILENCE is a noble thing, it's true, but I'll take less nobility and more relief with flu.

Nobody believes in miracles these days, the man says. Hah. How mistaken he is. Beauty parlors are swarming with people who believe in them.

In Hollywood they bring out a book of "Whose Who's" every month in order to keep up-to-date on who is married to whom.

Soil conservation has meant savings to the farmer in seed, fertilizer, labor, and power, and increased volume.
