Pawnee Mission a Historic Site

By DR. JAMES C. OLSON
Supt., State Historical Society

Among the interesting historical sites in Nebraska is that of the old Pawnee mission, located on Plum Creek near where it empties into the Loup river, and not far from the present town of Fullerton. The mission was established in 1841 and abandoned in 1846 as a result of raids by the Dakotas.

During those few years, the missionaries stationed there experimented with the agriculture possibilities of the region and made some small progress in the religious and intellectual instruction of the Indians with whom they were associated. On the whole, though, they seem to have had a discouraging experience.

Some of their letters are published in volume 14 of the Collections of the Kansas State Historical Society, and from them we are able to glean a picture of life at this isolated Nebraska mission.

Principal figures at the mission were John Dunbar and Samuel Allis, Presbyterians, who had come to the Nebraska country in 1834 and who had spent much time wandering with the Pawnees, accompanying them on their hunts and living as one of them. After this wandering life, they were much gratified at the opportunity of establishing a permanent mission. Such gratification made its abandonment all the more difficult to bear.

The missionaries arrived at their new home, May 17, 1841. Writing on July 31, Dunbar stated: "The crop now appears promising. Our gardens are doing well, when the lateness of the season at which they were planted and that the land had not before been cultivated are taken into account. This is a fine corn country and I know not why wheat may not be cultivated to advantage. . . the soil is very mellow and may be easily plowed with one yoke of oxen or dug up with the hoe and when properly tended produce an excellent crop of corn, pumpkins, melons, etc. — just the thing for Indians."

Allis, writing in September, was of the same opinion: "The country here is quite healthy, the soil productive. Our corn, and most of our garden vegetables look well and promise a good crop."

The appearance of warlike Dakotas in June, 1846, abruptly terminated the life of the mission. As Dunbar wrote from Bellevue, whether the missionaries had gone, "The person in the employ of government unanimously decided to leave the country as soon as might be after this second visit of the Sioux. This decision was communicated to the Mission and we soon came to the same conclusion."

Oppose Curtailment of Rail Service

NIORARA—The Niobrara Community club sponsored a special railroad meeting at the ZCJB hall Friday evening. Delegates from all towns on the C&NW railway Norfolk-Winner line were invited to meet and formulate plans in defense of continuing daily passenger service. Nine of the 16 towns along this line were represented.

One delegate was elected to represent each of these to form a committee which will draw up plans for the hearing to be held at Norfolk.

Chairman M. C. Warren, of Creighton; Emil A. Jerman, of Verdigris; Elmer Crosley, of Center; W. W. Marshall, jr., of Niobrara; L. E. Peck, of Verdigris; J. A. Guttery, of Lynch; L. W. Gibson, of Bristow; R. B. Drickey, of Spencer, and S. J. Reinheimer, of Butte, will make up the committee.

The committee will meet Friday evening at the Niobrara town hall to consider what further action is to be taken. Pledges were obtained for funds to finance the fight. The towns not represented at the meeting will be asked to join. Chairman Warren called for a discussion on "how and why we should keep the service." Such facts as that at times when the roads are bad the railroad is the only thing that keeps some of the towns west of Niobrara from being isolated and that it is of great importance as a mail carrier, were brought out. It was pointed out that if better service would be given by the railroad better returns would result. All towns represented went on record as unanimously opposing curtailment of passenger service on this line. After the meeting the Community club sponsored a lunch at the Diez cafe.
