Beginners' Law Is Pointed Out

In all classes of school districts, the law says a child shall not be admitted to kindergarten or beginner grade unless he or she has reached the age of 5 years or will reach such an age on or before October 15, of the current year, or the child passes a test showing that he is capable of carrying the work of this grade.

This was pointed out this week by Miss Alice L. French, Holt county superintendent of public instruction.

No tests will be given after September 30. They may be given any time before that date according to the plans of the tester. The parents should present a birth certificate and a signed statement from the board of education of the district the child will attend saying that the beginner grade will be provided in that school and that the child will be accepted if he passes the test.

"If you are interested in such a test, please contact me early in the summer, so I can make arrangements for the test," Miss French said.

No tests are given for entrance into first grade. The child must be 6 years of age or will reach such an age on or before October 15 of the current year or has successfully completed the kindergarten or beginner grade.
