Out of Old Nebraska . . . 'Big Injun' Dance Caps Early Fourth

By DR. JAMES C. OLSON
Maj. J. W. Pearman, a prominent territorial pioneer, described 2 early Fourth of July celebrations in reminiscences of Nebraska City which he wrote for the old settlers association of Otoe county in 1873, and which are published in the "Proceedings and Collections" of the Nebraska State Historical Society for 1907.

The first took place in 1853, the year before Nebraska territory was created. Pearman was at old Ft. Kearney (or what was left of it), and decided to try to attend an Independence day celebration being held across the Missouri river in Sidney, Ia. The river was in flood, a condition which somewhat complicated travel. . . . But let Major Pearman tell it in his own words:

"On July 4, Lafayette, Duncan, myself, and 7 Oteo Indians started for the highlands in Iowa in canoes. We left the foot of Main street early in the morning expecting to reach Sidney, Ia., by 10:30 a.m. in time to take part in the celebration of that place. We aimed to go through the heavy timber directly opposite the city, but after paddling our way for a few hours we found we could not get through on account of the driftwood afloat.

"We sent the Indians back tied most of our clothing around our neck, and started a-foot for the Bluffs, a distance of about 8 miles, at which place we arrived about dark, traveling in water from 2- to 3-feet deep.

"We arrived at Sidney at 1 a.m. on the 5th to find the celebration all over and the people in bed. The next year, Nebraska City held a Fourth of July celebration of its own. As Major Pearman described the occasion:

"The 4th of July being near at hand, it was determined to have a grand old barbecue, and every one set to work doing what they could to make it a success. Arbors for eating, speaking, and dancing were erected near where the Seymour house now stands. Everybody was invited far and near. There were at least one thousand persons present, Atchison county, Mo., and Fremont county, Ia., furnishing most of the white people, while our own locality furnished many whites and a host of Indians. Dancing and eating commenced about 1 o'clock of the 4th and wound up by a 'big Injun' dance on the evening of the 6th.

"And be it said to the credit of the earlier settlers of Otoe county, not a drunken man was seen nor were there any disturbances of any kind during this 3 days' barbecuing."

Nebraska City, of course, was hardly an organized community at the time this first celebration was staged. Major Pearman concluded his account with a statement that illustrates most effectively the character of those early territorial pioneers.

"The glorious old Fourth having passed off to the satisfaction of all concerned," he stated, "the town proprietors thought it about time to commence the work of building up a great city on the west bank of the mighty Missouri."

ATKINSON NEWS
Mrs. Frank LeMunyan accompanied her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Douglas, Glenda, Leila and Lanny, of Lennox, Ia., to their home Saturday morning where she will visit for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beck, accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Beck, and children, Evelyn, Donnie and Marion, of Chester, Calif., drove to Nevada, Mo., July 1, where they visited Mr. Beck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Beck, and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Day. On their return, Mrs. Clarence Beck and children returned to Chester from Omaha, and Mr. and Mrs. George Beck visited over the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Quigley at Bellevue.

O'NEILL LOCALS
Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pfeiler, of Hot Springs, S.D., arrived Tuesday for a visit at the home of Miss Bernadette Brennan.

Mrs. John Hipke, of Springfield, spent the weekend visiting Mrs. Clarence Wrede. Robert Lansworth, of Seattle, Wash., was a Monday overnight guest of Allen Martin. Mr. and Mrs. Bill McElvain and children, Mary Ellen and Jerry, of Ogden, Utah, visited on Sunday, July 8, with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McElvain and family. They were enroute to visit their parents at Chambers and Fairmont. Mr. and Mrs. Con O'Connell and daughter, of San Louis Obispo, Calif., arrived Saturday to visit Mrs. O'Connell's sister, Miss Elizabeth O'Malley, and other relatives. Try Frontier want ads. for quick results!
