Graham Writes Book on Pioneer Life

A native son of Emmet, T. A. Graham, now residing at 1717 Chicago street, Omaha, has written a book entitled, "Candlelights of History." The book, carefully documented, is a saga of pioneer life in the central section of Holt county 60 years ago. The author, a member of a pioneer family, was a teacher in Holt county schools for a number of years, spent 23 years in civil service in Washington, D.C., and now resides in Omaha. He was reared on a homestead farm 2 miles southeast of Emmet.

The Frontier received a complimentary copy of Graham's volume written by a man whose memory of those formative years of Holt county life still is very vivid and accurate. Among persons still living he mentions W. P. Dailey, retired Emmet banker; Jim O'Connor, proprietor of a tavern, and others.
