Hurrying, Romping and Loitering Young America Goes Back to School

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS

LINCOLN— School bells ring again in September. Foliage on lordly trees waves in the wind, still robed in summer green. The floral bloom of the departing season must merge soon into the gold and crimson leaf of autumn. Hurrying, romping and loitering on the way to school goes Young America again. There are the precocious, the smart ones, the dull and backward ones, the quiet retiring ones and the bold bluffers. What a student reveals in classes and exams is not a safe guess for the future.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was next to a flop at Harvard and barely squeezed through a law school. Whatever one may think of the result, scarcely a man since Lincoln has risen to the presidency of the United States who made the impression in national and world affairs left by the first New Dealer.

Worthwhile or a calamity, the Roosevelt saga is without an equal in the country's history. Now another September and life throbs in school rooms, the one room of the district school with a half dozen students and the crowded city school rooms. Youth and childhood have come from windswept prairie, from city and town dwellings to sit at the feet of the Gamaeliels. Out of this group may come men and women carrying a torch that lights the way to new achievements.

All have known of the sluggard in school who in mature years was a credit to the community. Charley Jones was one such individual I recall who had no interest in books and schools as they formed the educational picture in O'Neill in the long ago. Charley, friendly, personably charming, some how made out though he eschewed books and formal education, and the last time I saw him he was a member of the state legislature representing the Colfax county district. But another with the same aversion to books and schools, Tracy Gwyn, died unremembered in O'Neill after a wasted and worthless life.

Go to school, boys and girls! Do your level best to be a credit to the school, to the family you represent and to the community that has an interest in your success.

A young daughter, introducing her mother to friends at a mother-daughter function, said: "This is my mother; I had nothing to do about it, but I can choose my friends and she heads the list."

Star gazers and astrologists say that a change is coming up in the polar regions, the magnetic pole taking a few steps, hence the polar star Polaris is to be replaced by another. Out of these facts or fancies conclusions are drawn that account for the earthquakes, floods, wars and the general mess we fellows have made of things. Anyway, they don't blame it all on Dean Acheson.

World-minded men promulgated the one world program, meaning a universal national setup. Churchmen toy with idea of uniting Jews and the various Christian bodies into one church. President Truman, a Baptist, favors the one church idea, probably Baptist, and one world political group—Democrats, Jews, Catholics, Methodists and the others amalgamated into one. Why not include the Mohammedans, the Brahmins, the Buddhists and the fire eaters and the snake charmers. It has an appeal for world dreamers. If it were possible to thus corral world thought it would not be long before a Martin Luther, a John Knox, a Charles Wesley, a William Miller, a Cardinal Gibbons, a Billy Sunday, a Mary Barker Eddy, a Father Devine or an Amy Semple McPherson would explode the beautiful dream. There might well be a reduction in creed-bound groups, but a universal organization stifles individual initiative. Diversity of thought broadens the mind and makes for soul freedom. Out of the fires of the arena came deliverance from the thraldom of emperor worship. And, to quote from St. Paul's letter to the Romans: "So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God."

Senator McCarthy's visit to Lincoln was something of a flop. This crusader from Wisconsin is after the political and official hide of government functionaries he claims, and has the evidence of it at hand, are tinted with the doctrines of the reds. There has been so much accusation, so much shady performance, so much in the realm of graft, brought to light that the plain citizen has become either indifferent to it all or is convinced that his time will come at the polls to say what he thinks about it. If indifference is due to lethargy on the part of the citizens it will take a nation-shaking political earthquake to arouse them to action. If once aroused you better get out from under. It is not so surprising that the fighting Irishman from Wisconsin was not greeted by multitudes; he fared fully as well in Republican Lincoln as did President Truman in Democratic Omaha. Political spellbinders are not taken seriously by this generation, but maybe we had better come to life else the reds beat us to it.

The sigh of the breeze and the swish of the trees commingle in joyous refrain, while I loll in the shade dreaming the old dream o'er. A red truck rolls to a stop and here comes the bakery peddler with his breads and cakes and sugared things, luring my thoughts from the forms that belonged to the days of the dead long ago, away from the region of silence with that lost love of mine when in green meadows we blue meadowbells, together we gazed on the star world amazed, together shared in life's ebbing tide, together knelt at the evening bedside. O' yes! The bread boy is at the door. The old man sits and dreams. Along comes a loaf of bread and reminds him of the life-long habit of eating.

A Lincoln citizen who died in 1950 left an estate valued at more than one million dollars. He came to Lincoln from an out-state small town some 20 years ago with a meager knowledge of the printing trade and a large stock of ambition. He launched into manufacturing, and put on the market a garden tool. From a small beginning he became the head of one of Lincoln's largest manufacturing plants, with large government contracts. The estate just paid a sizable inheritance tax. An inheritance tax—why should federal, state or county governments step in and take the earnings and accumulations of an industrious citizen?

Not so long ago $1.50 was their limit. Now printers think in terms of billions. A "b" mat slid down the channel for the operator instead of an "m" and made out that there were a half billion American men and women turned out last year with degrees by the colleges and universities of the country. That's more gents and ladies than in all of America, but as billions have become the common denominator at present the intelligent compositor and astute proof reader are alike excusable.

A Winnebago Indian, killed in action with American troops in Korea, refused burial in a Sioux City cemetery because he was not a white man. He was man enough to take his place with the American army. Washington civil and military officials were aroused over the action of the cemetery officials and placed the Arlington national cemetery at the disposal of the dead soldier's relatives where they buried their dead.

Lincoln's mayor, whose name has a Scandinavian flavor, an asset in an election for state offices, is said to be grooming for the Republican nomination for governor.

There were around 600 hogs on the Thursday, August 30, sale held at the O'Neill Livestock Market. The top butcher hogs ranged from $21.10 to $21.25; top sows, from $19.50 to $19.65. There was quite a good run of feeder pigs and the market on these was very good.

Thursday saw around 400 head of cattle through the ring. Good yearling steers were being quoted from $35.00 to $27.25 and the heavier kind of yearlings on down to $34.00. There were a few pretty fair calves going at $33.35. The bulk of the cows went from $24.00 to $25.50. Fat heifers were selling up to $31.00.

Cattle receipts are steadily increasing, reflecting the seasonal upswing. In a few weeks the O'Neill market expects capacity runs.

Hog sale currently is starting at 1 o'clock sharp. Later the hogs will be sold in the forenoons, the cattle in the afternoons and evenings.

U. S. highways 20-275. A hole was burned in the front seat and some of the upholstery in the car was burned.

The O'Neill midgets winning streak was snapped Friday night on the Spencer diamond. The Spencer midgets won by a score of 5-3. On Sunday, the O'Neill midgets went to Lynch and fared better. O'Neill won, 6-3.

Old Courthouse Scene of Club Meeting—

The Riverside 4-H club held its regular meeting and achievement day at the old courthouse at the Ed Boyle home Sunday, August 26. Roll call was answered with something accomplished in 4-H during the year. There were 5 members absent and 8 visitors were present.

Plans for the food stand, exhibits at the fair and date set for handing in work books by September 13 were the topics discussed.

Instead of recreation the members gave the stand a second coat of paint. Mrs. Boyle served sandwiches, koolaid and coffee.

The next regular meeting will be at the Leo Schneider home.—By Mary Frances Vitt, news reporter.

O'Neill Soldier Upped to Sergeant—
