CAPITOL NEWS . . .

Butler - Peterson Fued Has Begun

LINCOLN. — Politics was warm'n' up in Nebraska this week.

The long-awaited pier 7 brawl between Gov. Val Peterson and Sen. Hugh Butler over the republican nomination for Butler's office, appeared to have started.

And in the Third congressional district, the experts still couldn't predict with any degree of accuracy the candidates to be named next Tuesday for the special December 4 election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Rep. Karl Stefan.

School land lease sales continued to be a problem and Nebraska's legislators were asked whether they wanted to come back to Lincoln to do anything about raising old age ceilings.

Snap—

White-haired, 73-year-old Hugh Butler, whose health, whether he likes it or not, is almost certain to be a campaign issue in the 1952 senatorial race, let fly last week with a statement designed to scotch rumors that he had decided not to campaign for a third term.

The rumors have been current in the state for some time. One version was that Butler had decided not to run and was giving his blessing to former Gov. Dwight Griswold, now a Gering banker. Butler thrashed Griswold in the 1946 election.

Such rumors, Butler snapped, are "pure political propaganda and malicious smear attacks." His Omaha office told inquiring reporters the senator had this to say:

"Some time ago, I made the statement that I would become a candidate for reelection to the senate and I have repeatedly said that upon the adjournment of congress I would return to Nebraska and begin an active campaign. "I hope that the campaign can be fought on the real issues facing the country today rather than on rumors and insidious propaganda which have no bearing whatsoever on the campaign."

Maybe—

At Gering, meanwhile, Griswold was cagey in answering reporters' questions. He said, "I guess you're always interested (in the senate race) as long as you live."

And friends of the former governor let it be known that he was available as a candidate if Butler does not run.

Republicans—

The scramble for the Third district GOP nomination—viewed from here—seemed as wide open as a baby's yawn at week's end.

Some of the men considered to be top drawer candidates had indicated they didn't want the job: State Sen. Earl J. Lee, of Fremont, Earl Moyer, of Madison, Former State Sen. Norris Schroeder, of Hoskins, District Judge Lyle Jackson of Neligh.

That left about half a dozen men who could be considered active candidate: J. J. DeLay, Norfolk banker; Dr. Harvey Glatfelter, of Central City; Attorney Walter B. Sadlek, of Schuyler; Charles Thone, 27-year-old deputy secretary of state, from Hartington; State Sen. Dwight Burney, of Hartington.

District GOP Chairman Ted Hook has summoned his 21-member committee to meet at Columbus at 2 p.m. next Tuesday to decide on a candidate.

Democrats

Walter Raecke, the Central City attorney who gave Gov. Val Peterson his toughest race, remained the big question mark on the democratic side. Raecke, a former speaker of the legislature, conceded that he had been asked to run, but said he probably wouldn't have an answer until this week.

Duane K. Peterson, the youthful Wausa man who lost to Stefan in the 1948 and 1950 balloting, but who was not suggested by the party's candidates committee as a likely prospect, picked up some new support with an endorsement by the Dakota county committee.

Other names in the democratic grab-bag: Robert R. Moodie, of West Point; Lloyd Pospishil, of Schuyler, Fred Deutsch, of Norfolk, and Otto Walter, of Columbus.

Headache—

The board of educational lands and funds met at the capitol again this week with a new headache in the school land lease rhubarb. The latest trouble is "buyer resistance" at school land auctions. Bids of $1 were the best offered for several parcels of land in Cherry county. The board which must approve each sale before it's final, had already rejected bids of $5 as being far too low.

Nobody here was sure just what action could be taken if the leaseholders and others were willing to unite in their "resistance" move but a member of the board said his faith in the law of supply and demand was very strong.

Special Session—

Gov. Val Peterson this week was totaling up the results of his poll of Nebraska's 43 legislators on whether they wanted to return to Lincoln for a special session to deal with old age assistance.

Such a session was suggested by Sen. Hugh Carson, of Ord, a candidate for the republican nomination for governor.

Peterson had told the lawmakers he would keep their reports confidential. That brought from Sen. Arthur Carmody, of Trenton—a close supporter of Carson—a blast against secret polls.

He said the governor and all elected officials should take a public stand on such matters.

As for himself, Carmody wrote, the answer to the special session query is yes.
