Kelley's Celebrate 55th Wedding Date

especially when 9 children weren't enough and neighborhood children gathered there after a prairie chicken hunt.
"We always found a place to sleep," remembers Sam, now an executive for the Lee variety store chain with headquarters at Fairbury.
"We used to aggravate mother," he recalls, "especially when the 5 boys, and dad, too, would be playing baseball in the yard and the ball would crash through the front window."
"We always had a couple window panes out," Bill said.
The girls, Creola and Lyle, had problems, too. They could never keep hair on their dolls. Those mischievous boys!
All the children went to school there, grew up, several stayed in the locality and others scattered like families do.

Young Bill and James (Jim) remained in the vicinity of Inman; Creola Henry has been living in Anchorage, Alaska; Lyle Jackson and Charles have residences at St. Paul, Minn., and A. Theodore (Ted) lives at Lincoln.

On their 55th wedding date the Kelleys counted 18 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren—Don Fleischbacher and Karre Louise Kelley.

Two of the children are deceased. Don died at the age of 8, Derietha, at 18, both from ruptured appendix.

In the terms of Mr. Kelley his wife belongs "to every little club in the country." She's a past noble grand of the Rebekah lodge, she's a member of the Coffee club and a number of others.

"Every day she's out clubbing somewhere," he explains. Judging from her energy you'd never believe she wasn't equal to a golden wedding celebration 5 years ago.

His health, too, is excellent considering his age—77. In recent years, however he has become slightly hard of hearing. The impediment did not interfere with his greeting old friends.

Mrs. Kelley says that the night she spent in a country school house during the great blizzard of 1888 was the biggest event of her childhood. She asserted the '88 blizzard was worse than the recurring blizzards of 1948-'49.

Dressed in a wine colored dress and wearing a yellow corsage, becoming with her brownish grey hair, her eyes sparkled when she gave a recipe for 55 years of happily married life.

"You have to take as well as give," she asserted.

Lots of changes have taken place since Mrs. Kelley came to Inman as a tiny girl.

"I can remember when there were no trees, roads and only a few buildings," she recalled.

Recorded interviews with Mr. and Mrs. Kelley were rebroadcast on the Monday morning edition of "The Voice of The Frontier" (WJAG, 780 kc., 9:45 a.m.) conducted by George Hammond.

A daughter, Lyle Ruth Jackson, has written a sentimental poem that best tells the story of Mr. and Mrs. Kelley:

With 55 years of love and devotion
And the understanding that no one can exceed,
The patter of little feet, that were always kept neat
And a home that was most humble, indeed.

The house, the flowers, the garden and such
Are really a beauty to us.
The pair that pulled the load together so grand,
Never complain, bother or fuss.

Now papa has to go fishing most every day,
And mama has her clubs, quite a few;
There's rarely a ball game that they ever miss,
Seems there's so many things they have to do.

This is just a part of the miles they will go,
They're both so happy and gay;
With a Ford full of gas, and their chuckles and laughs,
You can see them most any place, any day.

Nebraskans Can Be Thankful

Nebraska is particularly fortunate this year in having excellent crops of corn, wheat, hay, and sugar beets. You can be thankful we have been so blessed.

Nebraskans can be thankful, too, for this state's successful system of self-regulation employed by our tavernmen. Today, Nebraska's attractive, respectable, orderly taverns are a credit to a great state.

This is a direct result of the brewing industry's continuing educational program aimed at encouraging approved tavern operation.

Your tavernman has pledged his sincere cooperation to this program and, as a result, we have wholesome conditions in Nebraska's taverns for which we can all be thankful.

We want to thank our dear Lord for being so kind,

As to give us parents like this; And hope that this special day may in some way

Be one they're glad they didn't miss.

Their friends and relatives, both large and small.

They came in numbers galore. Little did they know there was to be all of this,

But that's what surprises are for!

Stuart Pioneer Has 91st Birthday

STUART—A west-Holt county pioneer, Martin Miksch, Sunday was honored in celebration of his 91st birthday anniversary. A family affair was held at Stuart, attended by his sons and daughters, 34 grandchildren and 40 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Miksch was born at Pieberschlag, Czechoslovakia, November 9, 1860. He came to America in 1864. In 1890, he moved onto a homestead located 10 miles south and 2 miles west of Stuart.

Mr. and Mrs. Miksch became the parents of 6 children. His wife died in 1907, and in 1923 he moved to Stuart where he has continued to reside in retirement.

Mr. Miksch's exact anniversary date was Friday, but the celebration was delayed until Sunday in order that most of his descendants could attend. Two granddaughters, Maryann and Loraine Miksch, baked the 91st birthday cake.

Mr. Miksch's sons and daughters are: John, Henry, Mrs. William Koffman and Joseph, all of the Stuart vicinity, and Miss Cecilia Miksch, of Tekamah.
