The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white slipper gown with a fitted bodice that buttoned in the back with tiny self-covered buttons. Postmaster Urges Early Yule Mailing

"It's later than you think," says Acting Postmaster Thomas E. Sullivan, officially declaring the Christmas season open in behalf of the postoffice.

Sullivan appeals for early mailing and cooperation on the part of the public.

In order that Christmas packages and cards reach the destination in time, he makes these requests:

(1) Purchase extra stamps next week, thus avoiding last-minute crowds. Bear in mind the desirability of sending cards first class. The rate for unsealed cards is 2 cents, but this does not provide forwarding or return service. Check and revise Christmas card address lists real soon. Address and stamp them at once.

(2) Lay in adequate supplies of cardboard, sturdy outer paper, strong cord and printed fourth class labels for wrapping parcel post. Packages are limited to 70 pounds in weight and must not measure more than 100 inches, length and girth combined. Repeat the address inside the outer wrapping.

(3) Address plainly and completely. Give full name, house number, street, city, zone and state. Don't forget to write return address on Christmas cards and envelopes.

And the top warning of all: "Do your Christmas shopping and mailing early."

Sullivan predicts the greatest mass of yuletide mail in the history "by a considerable margin."

"Christmas packages for distant states," he said, "should be mailed by December 5. All yuletide mail should be on the way by the 10th. Cards to other states should be deposited by December 15. Greetings for local delivery should be mailed at least one week before Christmas." The postoffice is preparing to handle the business. The reserve mail sacks are being dusted off and an inexhaustible supply of stamps is on hand.

Keep Water in Front of Beef Cattle

The value of a constant water supply for beef cattle cannot be measured or over-emphasized, according to Dr. S. W. Alford, extension veterinarian at the University of Nebraska.

Doctor Alford said the water supply should be centrally located so the herd will be able to get water whenever they want it. Doctor Alford pointed out that a constant supply not only saves labor, but it is very necessary for the cattle to have. He said that a day without water does more damage to them than a

Nebraska Has Lowest Per Capita Debt

Nebraska has the lowest per capita indebtedness of any state in the nation, according to the Washington News Bulletin.

Nebraska's total indebtedness was reported as $1,033,000, or 80 cents per person. This compares with a high of $122.79 in Delaware, $80.53 in Louisiana, and $74.86 per person in North Dakota.

State Tax Commissioner Philip Johnson said the state actually has no indebtedness at all. The sum apparently referred to in the News Bulletin as reported in the Congressional Record was for construction bonds at the University of Nebraska of $284,000 and at the state normal schools of $751,000.

At the same time Nebraska during the last 5 years used the smallest amount of its citizens' income for state government purposes of any state in the Union.
