SORRY, WRONG FOUL

If a Bostwick farmer has a grudge against pheasant hunters, he cannot be blamed. Although he had his farm posted against hunting, he allowed a party of Omaha nimrods to hunt on his property. Then he and his family went to church. On returning, he found 2 of his prize guinea hens dead on the front porch. This note was attached to them: "Thank you so much for letting us hunt on your place. We got 6 nice birds and in appreciation are leaving 2 of them for you. We will see you next year."

HOLIDAY ON A POLE...

There are two kinds of holidays—a warm, comfortable, cheery holiday at home with all the family and then, there's the "holiday" on a pole your Consumers Service crews often encounter!

Yes, a "holiday" on a pole next to high voltage wires, in the face of a winter's storm is really no "holiday" to these men! But, in the highest tradition of service, your Consumers Line crews stand ready to spend a "holiday" on a pole so that you, may enjoy your holiday at home!
