Watchdog Group Formed

Nebraska now takes less of its citizens' income for state government than any other state in the nation. To see that the Cornhusker state maintains that enviable position, a group of Nebraskans have set up a citizens tax organization.

Spurred by the efforts of Former Gov. Dwight Griswold, the committee will soon open an office in Lincoln. The group has listed as its purpose:

Recognition of the need for a constructive highway program with adequate and fair provisions on state and local levels.

Recognition of school problems, of district reorganization and state aid to the teachers retirement system.

Better budgeting and fiscal controls, including periodic audits in both local and state government.

Continued and further elimination of earmarking revenues for specific purposes.

More adequate, uniform and equal administration of the property tax with revision where needed.

Factual study of proposals to broaden the tax base.

Efforts to provide safeguards against unwise and imprudent tax legislation.

Participation with other organizations in the state and nation with similar purpose.
