neer of the bureau of reclamation office at Ainsworth, gave a short report on the proposed developments within the basin. He further pointed out the need for continued hard work and cooperation by the residents of the basin to bring any of the proposed projects to a reality.

H. G. Thorley, president of the Commercial National bank at Ainsworth and the First National bank at Springview, who is also vitally interested in the cattle and livestock industry within the basin, made a few remarks concerning the needs of such proposed irrigation projects within the basin to bring about a stabilized economy for the livestock breeders and raisers within this area, year after year.

Robert H. Tyler, president of the North - Central Nebraska Press association, on behalf of the newspaper men present, thanked the association for its invitation for the evening. In referring to the maps and charts previously shown by Mr. Erickson, he called attention to the fact that every newspaper with the basin, has a proposed project in their own back yard, or at least near enough to be vitally interested in it.

Surveys show 67,000 acres of irrigable land in the O'Neill-Emmett - Atkinson vicinity. Dollar value of crop production per acre on irrigated land has about a 10-to-1 ratio over similar land non-irrigated.

Mr. Williams stated: "I do not need to point out to you gentlemen the basic fact that reclamation was not in 1902, nor has it been since, nor is it ever likely to be, a dole of public funds for the special benefit of a few landowners in the west. From the very first reclamation and the success of any reclamation project was designed to depend not upon the capacity of the United States mint, but upon the ability of western landowners to work together for the mutual benefit of them all."

"And today matters have by no means changed. Reclamation is the same in 1952 as it was in 1902."

Ralph Pinkermans Wedded 40 Years

Thursday, January 17, was the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pinkerman, of Dorsey. The day will be long remembered.

Their daughters-in-law, Mrs. Veldon Pinkerman and Mrs. Guy Pinkerman, assisted by a niece, Mrs. Richard Christensen, planned the celebration.

The guests began arriving at the home of the honored couple at 10 o'clock and at 12 were escorted over to the home of their son, Guy Pinkerman, where a 3-course dinner had been prepared.

The long dining room table was beautiful with its color scheme of red and ruby. The centerpiece was a large bouquet of ruby carnations and placed at either end of the table were 3-tier angel food cakes with red decorations. The place cards were cone shaped with red roses predominating and the napkins had the same flower and personalized with the honored couple's names, Ralph and Faye, January 17, 1912.

Both before and after the dinner was served pictures were taken of the table and guests. After dinner, the bride of 40 years ago opened their gifts.

During the afternoon a short program of readings was presented. "Forty Years of Wedded Life," by Mrs. Frank McDonald; "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," by Mrs. Alma C. Carson and "Snoring Husbands," by Mrs. Ralph Pinkerman.

The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hull, of Niobrara; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Farran, of Meadow Grove; Mr. and Mrs. John Pinkerman, of Lynch; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilson, Mr. and

When all departed for their homes they were unanimous in wishing that Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerman might have the opportunity to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. Ralph Pinkerman and Fay Wilson were married at O'Neill. They were both born in or near the Scottville community. Except for a few years spent at Meek, after their marriage their entire life has been spent in the Dorsey community.
