The Good Seed Quality of CORNHUSKER HYBRIDS

Is Especially Important To You This Spring!

- for 1951 was so "tough" a growing season that in many production areas normal seed-corn quality and yields simply were not possible.

CORNHUSKER, however, was lucky with its 1951 production of good high-germinating seed. Here's why:

- 1. This year our production 4. Thus we got more nearly area in the Platte Valley of central Nebraska waseven more than usual—the "garden spot" of the Western Corn Belt.
- 2. We were able to complete over 90% of our seed-field planting by May 14, 1951.
- 3. Heavy fertilizing aided steady progress toward maturity - just as you found was true on the most fertile fields on your own farm.
- normal kernel development, before the general killing frost of September 28, than was possible almost anywhere else in the entire Western Corn Belt.
- 5. Our entire harvested seed acreage averaged 85 bu. per acre after drying-with test weights running from 56 to more than 58 lbs. per bu.

Sales to date are by far the heaviest we've ever had - so, even with our good 1951 crop, plus a moderate supply of 1950-crop seed of excellent quality and germination, we will be completely sold out before this spring's planting is over. DON'T DELAY -- see your CORNHUSKER dealer NOW for GOOD seed of these GREAT hybrids!
