The committee, Secretary Laurence Haynes said, will work in cooperation with the officers and board of directors.

Gives Address—

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell and 2 sons, of Grand Island, visited Robert's parents, Rev. and Mrs. V. R. Bell, over the weekend. Robert gave the address at the morning service in the Methodist church. Robert Kurtz, lay leader of the church, presided.

Edward McCarthy, who attends Creighton university, Omaha, spent the weekend at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McCarthy, and family.

Prairieland Talk—

Lone Nebraska County Has More Cattle Than Wyoming, Colorado Combined

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS

LINCOLN—As Mr. Griswold anticipated there are others who have an eye on the 2-year senatorial seat. Now come 2 more republican patriots seeking the nomination. It is refreshing to see our representatives in congress speak out against the tidal wave of world visionaries who think the mission of America is to ram down the necks of the Mongolian races, the Malaysians, the Arabs, the Muscovites, the browns and blacks and the yellows our way of life.

A gent down at the little berg of Waverly delivered himself of some insulting statements concerning the attitude of Congressman Buffet, of Omaha, and to these insults a Lincoln editor plays second fiddle as an all-wise oracle of the times. What in heaven's name have the world dreamers accomplished—desolated homes, a world strewn with human carnage and dipped in the depth of human sorrow, bombs, roaring messengers of death on land and sea and in the air, little children and horror-haunted women cast adrift on the tide of human wretchedness to wander over war torn lands not knowing where to lay weary heads?

The world vision—it has been sown to the wind and reaped the whirlwind. Whoever is chosen by the sovereign citizens of Nebraska to stand where the late able and courageous Senator Wherry stood, may they have the courage born of prairieland traditions to stand with Mr. Buffet in defense of our American heritage.

An 81-year-old patriot over toward Omaha is reported to have husked 1,000 bushels of corn by hand last corn picking season. Whether he did the job in 10 days or a month is not material. The old boy got the corn out and asked no odds of anyone. The old fellows are showing 'em. John L. Lewis, gray and wrinkled, runs the miners' organization. Rep. Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, at 89, says he is going to be a candidate for reelection. McKellar, 83, of Tennessee, and Connally, 74, of Texas, each head important committees of the senate. And Nebraska's grand old man of the senate serves on more than one committee. Old man Herbert Hoover is resorted to when there is a tough job to do around Washington.

I find the following among the published letters in a recent issue of the Evening State Journal:

"LINCOLN — I am deeply grieved to learn of the death of the Nebraska democratic party in Omaha last week. I knew it was very low and had had several transfusions.

"I understand that there will be no definite date set for burial until after April 1. It has been announced that James Quikley has had the grave dug for some time. The pallbearers will be William Meier, Gus Boeschorner, Clifford Anderson, Harry Swanson, Hal McGovern and William Ritchie.

"Gov. Robert S. Kerr will preach the funeral sermon. Walter Raecke will give the eulogy. Michael McLaughlin will sing with J. R. Farris at the organ. The committee requests that money for flowers be sent to Washington, D.C. to apply on the national debt.—D. G. DAVIS."

Now, after the obsequies, may I suggest that John Sullivan and Francis Lee constitute a committee to get up a card of thanks for the contributors to the flower fund?

The Lions of a suburb of Lincoln are feeling pretty proud of their state this morning. Last night they had a dinner for members and their wives at a pretty swank setup. A guest from out in the west end of the state, Mr. Brooks, entertained, enlightened and amused the group in an address that dealt with the products and industries and scenery of Nebraska. He called attention to the Platte river, saying there is nothing like it in the world, a mile wide and 2 inches deep in some places. One county in Nebraska has more cattle than Colorado and Wyoming combined. One town of 400 citizens in the state's cattle empire has 14 millionaires. Omaha is the leading stock market of the country and the state leads all others in the production of grass seed and baled hay, has now and always had outstanding leaders in political, cultural and industrial lines. While it was not suggested by the gentleman's talk, it may be inferred that a people who vote pretty steadily republican are sure to stand pretty well to the top of the list.

The party caucus and conventions have been held, to the grief of a few who feed on sour grapes. These gatherings are the life of the republic. Every precinct voter can have his say by attending his party caucus. Here delegates are chosen for the county convention and the county convention names the delegates to the state gathering. Nothing can be more representative. The primary has an appeal to promote either party unity or good government, but grines about conventions and party "bosses." Political bosses. Yes, there are discerning ones who see clearly and whose patriotism and mental ability qualifies them for leadership. These are not to be confused with the corrupt politicians that influence city elections with booze and boodle. As long as we have republican and democratic parties—and that will be as long as men and women think—there will be need of party leadership. Maybe those who rave about the "bosses" are charged that their talents are not recognized.

Glad to see Holt county furnish a candidate for congress. Mr. Lee may not make much of a showing at the November election but he has the courage to ignite a spark of life in a political group that one day was the whole cheese in Holt county, the polestar of office aspirations throughout the state. With a millstone hanging from the neck of official Washington it takes grit for one a place on the ballot with the capitol dome glittering in one of our democratic patriots to seek eye. Maybe Mr. Lee proposes to shake the fist of a crusader in the shadow of the white house, joining with Billy Graham to put to route the forces of evil from the synagogues of Satan.

With telephones in every home, radios and television, the evening paper is no longer so important. That branch of the paper business may be on the way out unless more attention is given to local community affairs that as yet are not on TV or the radio. The weekly papers will continue to be in demand because of the intimate personal interests and doings of our neighbors, as well as being the medium for local business interests to get their message before the community. The ready prints have disappeared from the weekly newspaper and doubtless the next thing to go will be the homespun philosopher.
