"THOUGHT IT BEST FOR NEBRASKA"

Editor Lauds Butler's Big Sacrifice

Senator Hugh Butler

McCook, Neb.—"No man ever made a greater sacrifice for Nebraska" than Senator Hugh Butler did during the 80th Congress, when he turned down the chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee.

This is the opinion of H. S. Strunk, editor and publisher of The McCook Daily Gazette, who explains the reasons for Senator Butler's decision as follows:

"His seniority entitled him to the chairmanship of the Finance Committee when the Republicans took the Congress in 1947. Since that committee writes the nation's tax laws, he would have had the country's financial leaders waiting in his office for just a moment of his time.

"But Senator Butler

valued that position of great trust and elected to take the chairmanship of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, because it was that committee which had under its jurisdiction the critical subjects of IRRIGATION, FLOOD CONTROL and SOIL CONSERVATION.

"He thought it would be best for Nebraska.

"Senator Butler continues to hold the rank of minority leader of that committee, and would again become chairman in 1952 if the Republicans took the Congress this fall. And he continues to be a high ranking minority member of the Finance Committee, as well . . ."

Keep this great Nebraskan in the U. S. Senate.
