The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Anna Beaudin, of Omaha. The bride appeared in a white floor-length gown of nylon net over a hooped satin skirt with a lace bolero, high neckline and long pointed sleeves. Her fingertip veil fell from a shirred brim, tucked with net and looped with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations centered with an orchid corsage. Her only ornament was a two-strand necklace of pearls. She carried a silver rosary, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Neva Mae Bauer had charge of the guest book. Mrs. Harry Mordhorst and Mrs. Jewell Tomjack assisted with the gifts. A reception for 75 guests immediately after the ceremony was held in the church reception hall, which was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of pink, green and white.

And You've Got Trouble

When the weekly O'Neill (Neb.) Frontier came out with eight rather than twelve pages, the trade magazine Editor & Publisher dutifully checked up and uncovered a notable tale of editorial woe. Last week E & P reported that the small edition had followed: (1) the office manager's becoming ill, (2) the paper's only reporter getting flu, (3) the typesetter's going to bed after a four-tooth extraction, (4) the pressman's getting pneumonia, (5) the office boy's nipping off to a basketball game, and (6) the furnace's blowing up. Just after the editor, Carroll Stewart, had gone home, weary from getting out as much of the paper as he could single-handed, his phone rang. Too late for the press run, the caller announced that the village's police chief had just been murdered.
