WJAG Plans '52 Lincoln Caravan

September 2, 1951, was quite a red letter day for folks in the radio station WJAG radio area. That was the day four big buses left Norfolk for Lincoln to attend the opening day of the 1951 Nebraska state fair.

And quite a day it was, too, for the 150 or so WJAG listeners who took the trip. At a truly nominal rate, WJAG offered a day of trouble-free fun and sight-seeing at Nebraska's greatest outdoor event.

With the station taking care of all transportation and ticket arrangements the caravaners were freed of all traffic worries and ticket stand crowding, a convenience worth the entire cost of the caravan participation fee.

Everyone of the caravaners commented on their return to Norfolk that they had had a wonderful time.

And, according to Vernon Stedry, station sales manager, it looks as if the 1952 WJAG state fair caravan will be an even bigger success.

State Fair Grounds Get Improvements

Spectators at the 1952 Nebraska state fair will see new evidences of the fair board's year-round policy of improving facilities and services for the benefit of state fair patrons.

Completed in time for the 1952 event will be a building program amounting to some $115,000, every cent of which was paid for from Fair board funds.

Included on this improvement program are a toilet-shower-dressing room building for the Midway, several new and more modern concession buildings, much new curbing and guttering, the widening of the ground's main street and a new hay and feed building on the track.

In addition, every street inside the grounds which is not already hard-surfaced will be rocked and oil-matted.

This comprehensive improvement program is in line with the state fair board's policy of giving Nebraskans a convenient and completely-equipped place to hold the state's greatest outdoor event.

Congratulations

to the FAIR!
