

When You and I Were Young... Bonesteel Soon to Glimpse Train Elkhorn Extension Is Completed

50 Years Ago
Judge Harrington and Court Reporter Maher are in Springfield this week holding the fall term of court. A marriage epidemic has overtaken O'Neill. If it continues there may be some hope that Tom Quilty, Joe Ryan, Joe Mann, Mike Sullivan, J. P. Gallagher and Joe Horiskey may succumb to the disease and join the ranks of the benedicts. William Keeley returned from Alaska where he has been the past five years seeking gold. The Ditch Co. will pay 25 cents per bushel for one thousand bushels of corn delivered. Miss Leonie Shirving and James F. O'Donnell were married at the Catholic church November 12. Rev. M. F. Cassidy officiating. The Ditch Co. will pay $2.50 a day and board and feed for a team and wide tired wagon, $3 a day for a man and four horses, and $25 per month and board for five or six men to work in beet fields. The Elkhorn extension has been completed and the first train will run into Bonesteel, S.D., Monday. If you see a man supposedly a strong supporter of the republican party, walking with a lowered head, it's because on election day he voted a straight fusion ticket. Several of them have been spotted in town. J. P. McManus and sisters, Misses Mammie and Susie, Pete Ward and the servant escaped death during the night when poisonous coal gas filled the house while all were asleep. Miss Mammie awoke with a headache and opened the door a little. This saved their lives. Sam Howard is building a residence on Cleary street between Third and Fourth streets.

The O'Neill Gun club will hold two turkey shoots next Sunday. The district court has equalized the values between different townships in Holt county. Dona Jean Marcellus enrolled in the kindergarten Monday. Those having a perfect attendance record the past six weeks were Beatrice Harris, Franklin Langmack, Hugh Francis McKenna, Donald Mitchell, Junior Toy, Thomas Wyant, Harold Hunt, Junior Harris and Fred Halva. P. F. Scott suffered a badly sprained limb and bruised face when a horse he was riding fell upon him. O. A. Hammerberg has completed an addition to his poultry house.

Harry Bowen passed away at his home after a five-year illness. Eileen Robertson was transferred here from the Central Finance Co. at Neligh. The Chevrolet garage, which has been operated by the Midwest Motor Co., announced in a big ad that it plans to close for the duration of the war, blaming a lack of personnel. Mr. and Mrs. Lod Janousek entertained their friends at their home in honor of Lewis Novak who is leaving for the coast guard. Pvt. Steve Wallace was called to report back to camp while home on furlough visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Wallace. Keith Abart

War Dead Honored
by Band Performance.
EWING—"Troops Alert" a band show dedicated to Armistice day and two the men who fought in World Wars I and II was presented by Ewing high school band under the direction of Paul Cooper at halftime of the football game between Ewing Tigers and Newman Grove on Thursday, October 30.
The band entered the north side of the field and played a trumpet fanfare, then marched down the field playing the march "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," forming a circle at the 50-yard line. The floodlights then were turned off and a campfire was lighted and the band played "Taps" immediately after "Taps" the band played "Holy, Holy, Holy" in total darkness.
After a short pause for silence three shots broke the quiet, the floodlights flashed on and the band marched north playing, "Onward Christian Soldiers". The band stood at attention and played the "Star Spangled Banner" under the floodlighted stars and stripes and then proceeded off the field with muffled bass drum beat and snare drummers playing a street beat on the rims.
This was the third appearance of the school band at the home games and was appreciated by the large crowd in attendance.

Member of Band —
John Richard Bowen of O'Neill is a member of the Southern Methodist university Mustang band this fall. Bowen is a freshman student majoring in music education at SMU. He is an O'Neill high school graduate.

Out of Old Nebraska...
Senator Hayward a Teacher, Laborer
Arrived Same Year
State Admitted
Monroe L. Hayward, elected to the United States senate by the legislature on March 8, 1899, died December 5, 1899, before he had qualified. Though cut off just as he was about to climax his career, Senator Hayward, who came to Nebraska the year the state was admitted to the union, was closely identified with the developing years of the new state.
He was born in Willsboro, N. Y., December 22, 1840. He spent his boyhood on his father's farm, securing his education in the community's common schools with an occasional term at private schools. In common with many other young Americans, he enlisted for duty in the Civil war. He saw active service in the Shenandoah valley and so undermined his health that he had to be discharged from the army because of disability. Upon his return from the wars, young Monroe Hayward—again in the pattern of many of his ambitious contemporaries—struggled to complete his education. He worked his way through Ft. Edward institute by teaching school, serving as a bookkeeper, and doing manual labor.
Upon graduation, he read law, completing his legal studies at Whitewater, Wis. He was admitted to the bar in 1867, and then came out to the new state of Nebraska.
Young Hayward settled permanently at Nebraska City. For many years he was a member of that community's board of education, and in 1875 he served as a delegate to the state constitutional convention. He was active in the affairs of the Republican party and served several times as chairman of its state conventions. In 1898 he won the Republican nomination for governor. He campaigned actively, speaking in almost every organized county in the state, but was down to defeat at the hands of W. A. Poynter, fusionist candidate.
Though the fusionists won the governorship and other state offices, they lost the legislature. The Republican majority in legislature was badly divided, and it took two months of acrimonious debate for them to unite on a successor to Populist Senator William V. Allen. They finally agreed on Mr. Hayward. When he died before qualifying, Governor Poynter appointed Senator Allen to serve until the legislature could select a successor to Sen-
