Church Notes

METHODIST (O'Neill)
Rev. Wallace B. Smith, pastor
Today (Thursday): Due to the tournament, the choir will not meet.

Sunday: Church school, 10 a.m. Have you noticed that the Christian church has never neglected the mind when the church was at her best? Christianity is a "heart-warmed" religion; but it is also a "head-trained" religion. Paul said to Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved a workman unto God that needeth not to be ashamed." Attend the church school each Sunday morning.

Worship service, 11 a.m. This should be your "power house" experience with which to begin your week. The family should make the morning worship service a habit—each week.

Sunday evening fellowship, 6:30 o'clock. If you long for travel to see the "far away places" of our world, then this study time is right down your alley!

School of evangelism for Methodists in Holt county, February 8; church school observation school, Doctor Finch leader, February 20; preaching mission, Rev. Chester Wilcox is speaker, February 16; the Nebraska Bishop Watts preaches here, February 22; district Methodist men's rally here, March 8.

'Husker Caravan on Tour

The livestock and grassland program at Stuart on Wednesday, February 11, will feature the Cornhusker caravan.

The caravan, a traveling exhibit sponsored by University of Nebraska agricultural extension service, the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, and the Stuart Community club, shows latest information regarding agriculture and home economics. The caravan will visit 20 western Nebraska counties in 1933. These will be the only showings in the state this year.

Recently, a local committee met with representatives of the university to plan the showing in Stuart. The committee was composed of I. M. Ready, Mahlon Shearer, Joe Brewster, Ora Yarges, Mrs. Helen Kreyenborg and Neil Dawes. Representing the state extension service were Clyde Boyes, in charge of program planning; Ray Rustad, district agent supervisor, and Hal Allen, assistant extension editor.

The caravan is composed of 140 feet of exhibits. Nine extension specialists will be with it at all times to answer questions from the public. Four units make up the exhibit. One section on grasses, one on beef cattle, another on 4-H club and Rural Youth activities, and one on homemaking, will be shown in Stuart.

Included in the section on grasses will be the latest information on fertilization of wet meadows, a display on warm and cool season, grasses for meadows and pastures, information on sprinkler irrigation for sandhill meadows, and displays of recommended legume varieties and the steps to follow in establishing them in wet meadows. This unit is 32 feet long.

The beef cattle unit, also 32 feet long, will include information on insect and disease control, new things in beef cattle nutrition, shelter belts for beef cattle protection, and the objectives of the Ft. Robinson beef cattle research program.

The youth section, another 32 foot unit, will feature the 4-H club and Rural Youth stories, and the home activities. These are actually family affairs, and the possibilities for individuals belonging to 4-H clubs and Rural Youth organizations.

The homemaking unit, with 44 feet of exhibits, will feature storage space in the home, activities to save time and energy throughout the entire home. Latest information gathered by research workers at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture and by the American Heart association will be displayed.

A full-sized kitchen will be included in the exhibit, showing the best places to store different equipment, correct working heights, modern kitchen arrangements and other labor and time saving steps. Another section will show how additional storage space can be made in most homes, particularly in bedrooms. All of the material shown in the homemaking unit can easily and cheaply be adapted to most homes.

A feature of the caravan is that it will be no formal speaking program. At each stop, farm, ranch and town people are invited to come to the caravan, see the exhibits, ask their particular questions of the specialists. At least two specialists will be with each of the units at all times. In all sections, working models, colored pictures, and even live animals will be displayed.

The exhibits will be on display in the Stuart auditorium from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, February 11. All persons, both town and rural, are urged to see it.

The caravan will be in Ainsworth February 10, at Spencer February 12, and at Burwell February 13.
