

Snack Suggestions Offered Are Not Harmful to Children's Appetites

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

This is the time of year when German pancakes taste sort of super. If you have never served them at your house, why don't you try some? These aren't potato pancakes.

GERMAN PANCAKES
Three eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 cup flour, two tablespoons butter.

Beat eggs until very light, add the salt, beating continuously. Then add the milk. Butter a rather large frying pan and pour batter into it. Place in a hot oven of 450-F. for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to 350-F., and continue baking for 15 minutes. Place on a hot platter and serve with apple sauce or with powdered sugar and lemon juice.

If you'd like to have a try at potato pancakes, here's a real German recipe:

POTATO PANCAKES
Three cups raw grated white potatoes, two whole eggs (well beaten), 1 1/2 tablespoons flour, 1/8 teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt.

Peel large potatoes and cover with cold water. Let soak several hours before using. Pour off the water and grate potatoes. Drain thoroughly. Add the well beaten eggs to the grated potatoes and mix lightly. Stir in the remaining ingredients. Drop from teaspoon on a well-greased skillet and brown on both sides. Serve with applesauce.

When you boil rice, be sure you use enough water. Two quarts of boiling water, in proportion to 1 cup rice and 3 teaspoons salt is right.

Rice can be reheated, and it is easily done. It can be added to boiling salted water and recooked for five minutes and then drained or it can be reheated in the oven by adding a little water in the pan and covering and heating until grains are thoroughly hot.

Water drained from boiled rice may be used in sauces and soups, or for starching fine fabrics and laces.

Meat is an excellent basis for macaroni salad.

You'll need two to three cups cooked macaroni, one tablespoon chopped onion, one cup chopped celery and leaves, one cup chopped cooked ham or beef, salad dressing, salt and pepper. Cut cold macaroni in small pieces. Mix lightly with the other ingredients. Chill and serve on crisp lettuce, water cress or endive.

If the children get hungry, give them something more nutritious than candy between meals. May we suggest raisins, carrot sticks, washed dried prunes or peaches, fresh apple, or oranges as between meal snacks rather than too sweet candied and cookies.

These are better for the children and not too harmful for their appetites.

These are good dessert ideas for school lunches, too.

How many of you homemakers have top of the stove glassware? I have some and have had the same set for years, never have broken it and seldom a meal goes by but that I use them. I cook, serve and refrigerate in the same dish and it is such a work saver, besides being attractive and clean.

Late Senate Chaplain 'Lived His Faith'

Dear Frontier Woman:

As we all begin the new year I should like to offer this suggestion to busy homemakers to do more reading.

How many of you have read "A Man Called Peter" by Catherine Marshall? The story of Peter Marshall, late chaplain of the U.S. senate. Senator Vandenberg said of him, "I never had a more delightful companion. To me he was the personification of 'Onward Christian Soldiers.' He lived his faith."

Death should hold no fears for us if we are prepared. Peter Marshall is a shining example of being prepared.

'BOYD COUNTY READER'

We need letters for the Frontier Woman. We have, by the way, used all our seasonal letters, too.

SAYS SANDHILL SAL

Now that you've broken most of those wonderful resolutions, live each day for itself, and try to be as good as you can one day at a time.

Betty Muchmarried says it is no use to try to keep up with the Joneses. They haven't even been able to keep the Smith's dust in sight.

Bachelor Bill says a fried egg diet gets monotonous, but some married men have to cook their wives' breakfast, too.

Jehorek Typifies 'Preparedness'

By MRS. A. A. KALKOWSKI
Special Correspondent

LYNCH — The recurring blizzards of the winter of 1948-'49 and the storm of March 7, 1950, have taught farmers and ranchers in these parts the lesson of "preparedness."

Martin Jehorek, farmer living 1 1/2 miles west of Lynch, has hauled approximately 2,700 tons of hay with his underslung from hay fields to the farm yards for the farmers of this locality.

He has hauled 326 stacks this fall. The stacks averaged about six tons apiece although he has hauled several 10-ton stacks and as big as a 15-ton stack. These large stacks were all hauled on level ground.

The longest distance he has hauled a stack was 18 miles and he has traveled as much as 50 miles per day hauling these stacks of hay. The most stacks he has hauled in one day was 14. He has worked from the south shore of the Missouri river to the north shore of the Niobrara river and west from Gross to east of Monowi on the east.

The cost of the underslung is from $1,200 to $1,600, as the materials are expensive and hard to get, yet the investment is relatively low when one can haul 30 stacks to 35 stacks in one season. Then it becomes a very cheap way to haul hay.

The underslung, which Mr. Jehorek made himself, consists of a four-wheel wagon consisting of a heavy 18x14 foot platform on two 24-foot heavy 8-inch "H" beams. The winch is fastened to the back of the tractor. One end of an 85-foot five-eighths-inch cable hooks to this hay wagon, around the stack of hay, to the winch which pulls the stack onto the platform. The stack is also pulled off the platform with the winch.
