Join the Crusade for Safety

Here Is My Pledge:

I personally pledge myself to drive and walk safely and think in terms of safety throughout 1953.

I give this promise in seriousness and earnestness, having considered fully my obligation to protect my life and the lives of my family and my fellow men.

I pledge myself further to advance the cause of safety by talking to my family and friends and by taking part in safety activities of my club, school, employee group and other organizations.

The Frontier Urges Safety Signup

The Frontier today joins in the crusade for safety, a campaign to get every Nebraskan thinking about and doing something about his part in the state traffic-safety problem.

Three hundred nineteen persons died in traffic accidents on Nebraska roads and streets last year. Ever since World War II ended, close to six persons have died of traffic injuries every week in the state. Scores of thousands more have been injured, and millions of dollars have been lost in hospital bills, damaged cars, time lost from jobs and other ways.

Last year in our county one person was killed and many were hurt in highway accidents. In the first seven weeks of this year, Nebraskans have kept right on being involved in accidents, though the death toll has shown a promising downturn.

But motor vehicle death can strike the unwary at any time. Consider these cases in the past three weeks:

A college student dozed during a night drive. His passenger, a fellow student, died.

A 54-year-old man who'd never had an accident skidded into a creek. His father, a passenger, was killed.

An 8-year-old boy darted into the highway in front of his home and was killed by a car.

A 24-year-old bride of three weeks died when a car driven by her husband, a Korea veteran, collided with a train.

A 35-year-old man driving down a broad highway in clear daylight failed to notice a gasoline transport stop ahead of him. He rammed the truck and was killed.

Because The Frontier feels that traffic safety is everybody's business, we invite our readers to read the crusade for safety pledge in today's paper.

After you've read it and thought it over, sign it and mail it or bring it to The Frontier office. You will then be enlisted in the crusade for safety. You will have a job to do for safety, through your farm, civic, school, church or youth group.

Tell us about your safety projects, so we can publicize them and give safety ideas to others.

The crusade for safety was launched by the Omaha World-Herald February 1. That newspaper is offering many kinds of recognition to individuals and groups which do outstanding work for safety during 1953.

During the business session it was decided to buy a baby membership for little Bruce Waldo, small son of one of the members, Mrs. Lloyd Waldo. It has been the custom to buy these memberships for the babies of the members. Mrs. Vern Sageser, the president, was the delegate to the annual conference in Lincoln March 5 and 6. A contribution was given by the society to a project called "cozages for missions" being carried out at the annual conference. This money was given in honor of one of the society members, Mrs. Lawrence Barnett, who is a district officer. Instead of buying her a corsage the money will go for missions.

Mrs. Ernest Johnston carried on the study on "Africa." It continues to be very interesting and informative.

Mrs. Rob Rees and Mrs. Bertha Sammons served a lunch. The next meeting is March 25 at the home of Mrs. Blake Ott.
