Nebraska Girl Wins Art Prize

Diana Rhoades, 18 (above), of Blair accepts a scholarship check from Joyce C. Hall, president of the Hallmark greeting card company, during a visit to the firm's Kansas City, Mo., head-quarters. Miss Rhoades, a spring graduate of Blair high school, was winner in an art talent competition in which the Hallmark company awarded three scholarships for art study. The competition was organized by the General Federation of Women's clubs. Miss Rhoades' painting, "Meeting the Deadline," depicted a scene in the editorial room of the Blair high "Informer," of which she was art editor. She will enter a midwestern university or art school of her choice in September.
