School Compulsory for Kids Under 16

Parents have been warned by State Superintendent F. B. Decker that all youngsters not yet 16 will need to attend school this year — even though they have been out of school a year or longer.

The legislature in LB 455 passed at the last session decreed that all youngsters not yet 16 must go to school. The exceptions are those who have finished high school or are physically or mentally incapacitated.

Mr. Decker said: "Far too many youngsters have been quitting school after completing the eighth grade and that an eighth grade education is not sufficient for a person to live happily or successfully in this complex world."

The parents are responsible for their children attending school. Five dollars to $100 fine or imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 90 days, or both, is provided. In class 1 and 2 school districts, the county superintendent of schools is required to enforce the new compulsory attendance law and boards of education of the class 3 schools have the job in their districts.

General Electric advertisement: The man with 248,404 different names. I'dly toying with pencil and paper, we just figured out what it would cost to buy yourself a certain electric manufacturing company. Complete with factories, machines, raw materials in the bins, and so forth. Write your check for 2 billion dollars, please. (That's at recent price per share quoted on the Stock Exchange.) But don't send the check to the company. It doesn't own the stock. You'd have to buy back the stock in bits and pieces from 116,000 women share owners. And 83,000 men. You'd have to get in touch with about 25,000 trustees and guardians. And a few thousand insurance companies, universities, hospitals and pension trusts to buy back the stock they own. We wouldn't blame these people if they didn't sell to you. They don't have to, you know. Maybe they want the stock for the same reason you do. Not even a thousand millionaires, each putting in a million dollars, could "own" General Electric. The "man" who owns General Electric has 248,404 names. There are that many owners on the books. Simple mathematics can shoot a large round hole in the childish misconception that America's basic companies are owned by a few lucky people. Suppose there were the fantastic total of 100,000 millionaires. Even they couldn't buy the "people-owned" businesses on which America depends for goods. But already six and a half million individuals have a direct investment in America's production. The only thing bigger than America today will be America tomorrow. And the only collection of people rich enough to finance this growth and share in its success is the public. You can put your confidence in— GENERAL ELECTRIC
