The daily paper tells what happened, what

in the dark as to cause, effect and other details.

The weekly paper gives the complete story which,

when you have read, there is nothing more to be said. The taily arouses curiosity, the desire to know more; the weekly tells it all. . The Leigh World has gone into the hands of a new owner, the sixth since Prairieland Talker got out his last edition in that little Colfax county town. . . Most vacationers are back home recovering from it all.

One such puts it this way in a letter to this scribe:

"There is just no place like home." Learn to esteem the blessings of home by galavanting over the country. A Holt county citizen after visiting the show places remarked to his wife when near-came from. As the shadows and calm of twilight

settle across the land and the insect orchestra

plays the evening melodies you may hear only

katydids rasping away, but he will tell you a score of other insects he can hear coming in on the eve-and tears and desolated homes in less than a generation, crime that baffles officers of the law, mere children charged with revolting crimes. High taxes and a staggering public debt; a daily cry for more pay to meet the high costs and work 'til you fall over to earn enough to maintain the home; high rents with thousand dollar properties priced to the sky.

Traitors abroad in the land and on public pay rolls, moral values flouted and the cynic thumbing his nose at common

We live to learn along life's pathway, Rebuffs to slight and kindness to repay. The slights, the snubs are nothing much-Just bits of venom from souls fed on such, It's the kindly thought, the word of cheer From friends and neighbors we love to hear.

The primitive instinct is strong in the race. A group of neighborhood kids spent last night in camp on an island of the Platte over by Ashland. It was not wholly a group of kids—dads went along. The lure of camp life, the glow of camp fires, a night under the stars, the hum of insects and to awake after the night's repose on mother earth to see not the plastered ceiling above you, but the pink glow of early dawn does something to a fellow and you crawl into the day's duds feeling fit to wrestle with a grizzly. And then you are confronted by the inexorable that you must get back to civilization if you are to get the hotcakes and a steaming cup.

There are doubtless Frontier readers who will remember the Lowrie boys, Clinton and Will, sons of Rev. and Mrs. N. S. Lowrie, Reverend Lowrie doing pioneer ministerial service in Holt county. Both Clinton and Will are ordained ministers, Clinton in Detroit, Mich., and now spending a little time with Will at Lake Hubert, Minn. Will recently wrote an inspiring letter to the engineer of this department with whom he rode the prairie trails in the long ago. Both he and Clinton are facing the shadows of life's sunset but enjoy good health and the peace of mind that comes as a fruitage of having contributed to the uplift and spiritual welfare of those to whom they have been privileged to minister.

War in Korea is at least at a standstill. And 25,604 American soldiers died in vain, nothing settled, hatred living on in the hearts of men, desolated homes and little children left homeless and orphans. Hardly a community across peaceful prairieland that has not felt the sting of the ominous message to father and mother telling that their son had been "killed in action." How much longer upon the march down the corridor of time can mankind survive under a flood of human hatred?

As this editorial is being written, no news has held in red captivity.

Not only because of the tremendous cost in lives and in money, but because we are ending just about where we started ,without attaining the war at the very time when the U.S. had it

Our allies (political-not physical), who were trading with China, coupled with lame Washington leadership, restrained our forces from attacking the real enemy, and insisted that not even Red China's bases be disturbed. This provoked think, MacArthur had the right idea.

Under these strange conditions of war, a strategy completely foreign to the U.S. concept, our people were put at a very great disadvantage. They had colossal logistics problems, they had to contend with Oriental primitive conditions, rugged terrain and weather, and they were expected to fight with one hand tied behind them. It was a frustrating situation, indeed — apparently bargained for and prearranged that we should lose

And we did just that—we lost the war! Our own personal feeling, however, is one of joy that it is over. We do not like to see American boys dispatched to fight all over the globe-the third time in 35 years Uncle Sam has swept upand-down O'Neill's main street and picked the cream of its manhood for overseas fighting. We have felt all along that, tied up as they were, they could not possibly hope to win. The atrocity stories make your blood run
