Sparrow Creates Fireworks

An innocent little sparrow, one of a million of them hereabouts, fouled up northeast Nebraska's power network about 4:50 p.m. Sunday

When things were hot enough, anyway, because of burning sun, a lone little sparrow created colorful fireworks at the Consumers Public Power district substation, CPPD as well as the rural power at the north edge fo the city.

This is what happened: Mr. Sparrow picked up either on the east: from Butte, on the
