Yearling Heifer Is Shot in Head

CELIA—Saturday afternoon, July 17, a yearling heifer belonging to Frank Kilmurry was found shot in the head and had its throat cut. The critter was found north of the bridge north of Celia schoolhouse.

Tracks in the road showed that it had been shot while in the pasture and dragged to the middle of the road, probably to be loaded into a vehicle. Neighbors said their dog did a lot of barking in the middle of the night and they turned their yard lights on—probably scaring away the thieves.

The sheriff was notified and came. Several clues were found.

Mr. and Mrs. Merlyn Shaw of Durand, Calif., who have visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Butterfield, here since June 28, left Saturday for their home.

Omaha Market with 33,000 Paces Field

Omaha's livestock run at some 33,000 Monday paced the field; trade ranged from steady to lower with extreme heat again being a limiting factor on the demand side.

Slaughter steers, yearlings and heifers sold steady to 25 cents lower, instances 50 cents off, and clearance of the heifer run was incomplete. There were numerous steers and yearlings at $20-$24 with better 1,267 and 1,364 pound steers to $24.75 and $25; heifers weighing 1,077 to $22.75; many light yearlings and plain killer cattle $19.50 down. Cows sold steady to 50 cents off, canners and cutters $6-$8.25, most sales $6.50-$8; beef cows to $11, one low Western $11.50. Bologna bulls sold to $14.50, a few $15; veal calves to $16.

Stock and feeder trade looked unevenly steady to 50 cents lower, and in that division, too, clearance was incomplete. The replacement run exceeded 4,500. Plain to choice stock and feeder steers ranged from $12-$18, with better stock and feeding heifers $14.50-$17; stock cows to $9, veal weight steer and heifer calves to $18.

Hogs Monday at Omaha sold weak to a quarter lower, some sows off more, butchers weighing 180-360 $17.25-$23.50; sows weighing 270-550 $14.50-$19.50, extreme heavies $14.

Louie Pofahl had 18 steers on the market, weight 1,291, at $23.

Mrs. Marshall Is Honorary Member

Builds 4-Wheel Pull Tractor

NIORARA—When Ben Isackson, farmer eight miles west of Niobrara, read in a magazine about a four-wheel-pull tractor, he decided he wanted one.

But Mr. Isackson's efforts to buy one on a trip to Ohio were futile.

The next best answer, Mr. Isackson decided, was to make one.

Using parts chiefly taken from two large 1944 model trucks, plus some army vehicle parts, Mr. Isackson did just that.

He plans to use the big 135-horsepower vehicle for plowing his eight-hundred-acre farm near Northbridge, S.D. Four hundred acre will be planted to wheat this spring.

Mr. Isackson plans to do all one-way plowing with the machine. He found that with a two-hundred horsepower motor could pull 10 plows.
