

Flee Path of Dakota Twister

STUART—Mrs. Gilbert Shald and son, Stephen, Mrs. Wilfred Seger and Maureen Ulrich fled from the path of the tornado which struck Burke, S.D., Sunday.

The women were returning from Midland, S.D., where they had visited over the weekend with Mr. Shald and Mr. Seger, who are employed there, when they saw the funnel shaped cloud bearing down on them. A filling station attendant at Burke advised them to take refuge. They drove out of its path and took refuge in the basement of a farm home three miles south of Burke.

After the storm they returned to Burke to find the filling station where they had stopped shortly before a pile of rubble.

'Corky', 6, Makes It Across Street; Dog Hit by Truck

"Corky" Farr, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barr, is bereaved over the loss of his cocker spaniel dog.

The lad and his "best friend" were crossing South Fourth street near the J. B. Ryan Hay company offices. The boy got across the street safely, but a pickup truck clipped the dog, running over two legs. The dog was so badly injured a veterinarian was called to relieve the animal's suffering—permanently.

"Corky" has been fighting tears ever since the accident and would fight the driver of the pickup if he knew the driver's identity.

It was a case of hit-and-run.

New U of N Athletic Director a Visitor

Bill Orwig, newly-appointed director of athletics at the University of Nebraska, and Jerry Bush, newly-appointed head Cornhusker basketball coach, Friday afternoon visited O'Neill.

Orwig formerly was with the athletic department at the University of Michigan and arrived at Lincoln in May to direct rebuilding of the athletic program. Bush, an alumnus of St. John's college, Brooklyn, N.Y., played professional basketball for several seasons. Until signing for the Nebraska slot, he was head basketball coach at Toledo, O., university.

During their unannounced visit here, Orwig and Bush unsuccessfully tried to contact Marvin Miller, veteran O'Neill high football and track coach, and Don Templemeyer, newly-appointed athletic coach at St. Mary's academy.

It was the initial visit to north Nebraska for both men.

Orwig told The Frontier he was confident Nebraska would regain a prominent position on the national intercollegiate athletic scene. He said that last week's junket, which took them to Scottsbluff, Chadron, Valentine, Ainsworth, Bassett, O'Neill and Neligh, was "strictly a getting-acquainted proposition."

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Farr and family of Chicago, Ill., spent the weekend visiting the Earl and Clarence Farr homes.

Senate Committee Okays $450,000 Line to Belden

The senate appropriations committee Saturday approved a supplemental bill authorizing 450,000 dollars for the power transmission line from Gavins Point to Belden.

That announcement was made here by Representative Carl T. Curtis, candidate for the republican nomination for six-year senator.

The bill next must go to the senate where passage appears assured and then to a joint senate-house conference committee where opposition is expected.

Mr. Curtis has been pushing for passage of this measure, and was working with the late Sen. Hugh Butler on it the day he died.

Mr. Curtis said the senate committee also approved $1,350,000 for the Bostwick irrigation project near Franklin and two million dollars for the Glendo dam in Wyoming which will benefit the North Platte valley.

Belden is a strategic point in the Nebraska public power grid—the first important focal point east of O'Neill.

People Have Confidence in Wagener: Republican Candidate for Nomination GOVERNOR Primary Election — Tuesday, August 10th 1. Presently Lancaster County Attorney. 2. Senator Kenneth Wherry's Secretary in Washington, 1943-'45. 3. Founder's Day Chairman, 1948. 4. Republican State Central Committee Secretary, 1936. 5. U.S. Department of Justice Omaha-Lincoln Trial Attorney, 1934-'35. 6. World War I Veteran; Chief Attorney U.S. Vet. Adm., Nebraska, 1924-'33. The Wagener Program points up Nebraska's future welfare and provides a prosperity backlog against future economic or unemployment crises. On Taxation: Property and real estate taxes can and should be reduced by broadening the tax base. Property tax in Nebraska has become well high confiscatory as a result of an archaic and inequitable tax structure. At present, property owners are carrying the burden of state and local government. All should pay their fair share. A replacement tax is needed at the state level for state expenses and as an aid to the school system. At present property owners are carrying too large a tax load. To insure that everyone pays his fair share of tax, a replacement tax—not an added tax—should be selected by the Legislature as necessary as an avenue to provide revenue for state needs. This will eliminate property taxes at the state level and should reduce taxes at the local level. Real estate taxes can then be reduced 20 to 25 percent. Constitutional roadblocks should be removed to permit tax reform. So as to make certain that any tax passed by the Legislature will be only a replacement tax instead of an additional tax, the voters should approve L.B. 7 which prohibits any sales or income tax or some such combination being passed except as a replacement tax first at the state level. On Roads: The road program should be intensified and developed with emphasis upon Permanent, Primary and Secondary and all-weather Farm to Market roads. Plans are already underway for toll roads. Toll roads provide the best highways without cost to the taxpayer. Secondary and all-weather farm to market roads are essential to the state's economy. Without them, farmers cannot market. The priority and placement of improvements in new road construction should be left, in some degree, with those who are going to use the roads. Road re-location should not be harmful to local communities nor disrupt local highway economy. The state engineer's office should furnish consulting service when and where requested by local authorities. Too much emphasis is placed upon the element of traffic control in determining the need for highway improvements. Low traffic count roads are entitled to timely improvement. The state should provide sufficient funds to match Federal aid available to Nebraska. On Schools: Nebraska's children should have full educational opportunities. Voluntary redistricting of schools should be encouraged to promote better and more economical education. There should be an improved teacher's retirement system, and any other possible teacher's welfare program. Surpluses from the replacement tax should be, under Legislative direction, plowed back to the school system. On Natural Resources: The State's natural resources should be further formulated, instituted, promoted and protected. The state's support of soil and water conservation programs being pioneered in Nebraska should be continued. Systematic management of the state's priceless watershed land, permitting maximum local control in conservation matters, is essential. Such is the plan now being supported by the Eisenhower administration. Irrigation districts should be formed at local levels and coordinated with the Missouri River program. Recreational facilities should be fostered, promoted, developed and improved where and whenever possible throughout Nebraska. On Farming & Labor: Nebraska agriculture products should be processed in Nebraska by Nebraska labor for a diversified economy. Nebraska needs a more diversified economy. This can be furthered by processing Nebraska farm products in Nebraska. Already this has been accomplished to a certain extent by alfalfa mills moving into the state where the crop is growing. This provides local employment for many, many Nebraskans. The same thing can be accomplished with wheat, corn and other agricultural products with proper leadership, foresight, and initiative. Industrial and agricultural research should be encouraged, fostered and developed. On State Institutions: More attention should be given to state institutions. Underpaid employees do not make for the best of care in our state institutions. Institutional facilities should be improved and coordinated as between institutions to provide the best possible care, confinement and rehabilitation. On State Budget: All necessary budget requirements should be held to a minimum. The state—like private business—should receive dollar value for dollar expended, in state purchasing. On Youth Individualism and Spiritual development in Youth should be encouraged. After all is said and done, the most important resource in our state is the youth of the state. Hence, individualism and spiritual development in youth should be encouraged. The best way to encourage these characteristics is by leadership based upon Christian ideals and moral integrity rather than upon dollar values. In the matter of juvenile delinquency, preventive is far better than punitive law enforcement. FREDERICK H. WAGENER for GOVERNOR Holt County Wagener-for-Governor Committee G. Owen ("Bud") Cole, Emmet, Chairman
