NOTICE

There is some confusion regarding the 15 acres permitted in regard to marketing quotas. The law states that there can be 15 acres of wheat on any farm regardless of the allotment and that no excess wheat will be involved.

This 15 acres permitted applies only to the marketing quota provision. Since the 1955 farm program will have cross-appliance provision, anyone who overplants any allotment will become ineligible for all price supports. The 15 acre provision is not an allotment and, therefore, anyone, for instance, with a zero allotment or an allotment less than 15 acres who takes advantage of the 15 acres permitted, will become ineligible for price support on all crops produced on the farm.

Parties Point to Conventions

LINCOLN—The democrats and the republicans in Nebraska proceeded this week with plans for their post-primary state conventions next month.

The democrats meet at Hastings September 2 and the republicans go to Norfolk just two weeks later. Party organizations for the next two years will be completed, and strategy outlined for the coming fall election campaign.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson will headline the republican convention program. Although billed as the keynoter, he probably will not give his address until the convention has completed its formal business sessions.

A "testimonial" dinner is scheduled for the evening of convention day at Norfolk, and chances are that the auditorium will be opened to the public after the dinner so any who wish may hear the secretary.

Business—

Only real business for the conventions to transact is the naming of the state central committee members to serve for the next two years, and selection of state party officers.

The republicans are expected to keep William W. Spear of Fremont, who took over when David Martin of Kearney resigned last spring to run for the U. S. senate.

For the democrats, it is more of a problem. William H. Meier of Minden, present chairman, won the nomination for short-term senator, and is leaving the chairmanship. Those mentioned as possible successors include Charles Knowles of Omaha, an avowed candidate; Willard Townsend of Lincoln; Paul Busch, Howells editor; Henry Ley of Wayne; Leon Samuelson of Franklin; and Frank Reed of Venus.

More Plans—

Nominees of both parties held planning sessions this week at Omaha and the republican candidates for statehouse offices will get together again August 28, in Lincoln.

One thing the republican campaigners must consider is the caravan, which has been a fixture of republican general election drives in Nebraska since 1940.

The process which culminates with selection of top party officials at next month's state conventions began with the naming of precinct delegates to county conventions at the primaries August 10.

These delegates now must meet in the county conventions to choose delegates to the state conventions.

At state conventions, the delegates will caucus by legislative districts to choose state central committee members. Each of the 43 districts has a committeeman and committeewoman on the state committee of each party.

In the case of the republicans, the 36 state committee members meet apart from the state convention to elect their state chairman. The democrats name theirs in open convention.

Chopping Block

State Tax Commissioner George Peterson's job may be on the political chopping block next January, no matter which candidate for governor wins in November, and despite the fact he holds a six-year office.

This comes about through the fact the legislature last spring did not confirm him along with some other interim appointments. Gov. Robert Crosby had made.

The reason Peterson was not confirmed is that the legislature hesitated to do so in the face of the fact that the voters in November will have before them a proposed constitutional amendment providing a tax commission to be set up in place of the present office of tax commissioner.

Peterson would be safe until 1959, if he had been confirmed by the legislature. But the lawmakers chose to wait and see what happens to the commission proposal.

William Ritchie of Omaha, democratic nominee for governor, says L. C. Sholes, member of the Omaha tax appraisal board, would make a good tax commissioner. Sholes is a republican, but Ritchie said the state should not be deprived of his services for partisan reasons.

The name of state Sen. Arthur Carmody of Trenton has come into speculation in connection with the possible election of the republican nominee, Victor E. Anderson of Lincoln. Anderson says he has heard Carmody mentioned, but adds "I have made no commitments."

Basin Plan Gets
Ike's Approval

Hammond, Doctor Miller said he thought the just-ended 83d congress was entitled to a lot of credit and that President Eisenhower turned in a "mighty good batting average."

Congressman Miller told "Voice of The Frontier" listeners he didn't always agree with Sen. Joseph McCarthy's methods, but said the communists are a "tough crowd and they have to be handled in a tough manner."

A dinner party was held in O'Neill Tuesday evening in honor of the former Kimball physician, who is seeking reelection this fall.

Twelve attended the dinner party for Doctor Miller here Tuesday night, mostly republican leaders.

But, how much better
would your business
be if you advertised?

Thoughts on the above inquiry:

1. It is the question asked of partial and non-advertisers by the editor of "Retailing Daily."
2. More than 85% of all retailing dollars go into newspapers. Among newspapers, the most thoroughly read is the weekly hometown press.
3. Nebraska's biggest department store, a competitor of every small town merchant, devotes almost 100% of its advertising budget to newspapers. The store regularly offers large space ads to small outstate papers.
4. Local businessmen with regular advertisements in The Frontier have enjoyed what they have termed "our biggest days in business."
5. Readers pay to get The Frontier and are eager for the postman to bring it—as a welcome and needed guest. No other paper has the wide and complete circulation in this area that The Frontier does.

Mr. Merchant: Just as you were drawn to this ad, so will The Frontier's thousands of other readers be drawn to yours.

Remember, wherever else you advertise, you are only reaching people who have read a newspaper today, and will do so again tomorrow.
