

State GOP Expected to Do Its Share

Politics Put Finishing Touches on Campaign

LINCOLN—The politicians put the finishing touches on their campaigns this week as the November 2 election day had all but arrived. On the congressional level Nebraska, republicans appeared confident that Nebraska would do its share to comply with President Eisenhower's request for a republican senate and congress. But the democrats felt they had a better than even chance of taking at least one congressional seat away from the republicans. They hoped James Hart, Omaha lawyer and professor, would be able to defeat Jackson Chase, Omaha republican and former Douglas county district court judge, for the Second district congress seat. This would capture the seat now held by Congressman Roman Hruska, Omaha republican who is running for the senate. Democratic leaders said there was an outside chance James

Green, Omaha lawyer, might be able to defeat Hruska in that race for the unexpired term of the late Sen. Hugh Butler. They were also placing some hope in Frank Morrison, McCook lawyer, winning over Phil Weaver, Falls City automobile dealer, in the First district congress race. The best democratic hopes lay in a revolt by the farmers against the Eisenhower administration farm policies. But there didn't seem to be many outward signs of this as election day drew near. Congressman Carl Curtis of Minden seemed to have no obstacles in his way to defeat Democrat Keith Neville of North Platte in the six-year senate term race. Republican Mrs. George Abel, sr.,

of Lincoln appeared likely to triumph over her opponent, William Meier of Minden, in the curious two-month term race. Two incumbent congressmen, Robert Harrison of Norfolk, from the Third district, and Dr. A. L. Miller of Kimball, from the Fourth seemed to face little difficulty in shrugging off challenges by Democrats Ernest Luther of Hooper and Carlton Laird of Scottsbluff. Best consensus seemed to be that all the republicans would win with the possible exception of Chase. State Ticket—The republicans seemed on even surer ground in the races for the state officers. Despite all the furor

The annual student government day activities for junior class students from nine Holt county high schools were held Monday at the courthouse here. Under the auspices of the American Legion, the students rotated from office-to-office to learn first-hand information on how county government is operated. The two panel photos (above and below) provide a view of the young citizens as they assembled in the district court room at the climax of the day.—The Frontier Photos.

Pick 25 Acres Corn for Walt Richards

Emergency Fund Is Started

CHAMBERS—The following friends and neighbors gathered at the Walt Richards place in the west edge of town Monday, October 25, to harvest 25 acres of corn. O. D. Jarman, Ray Beed, Melvin Bell, J. W. Walter, H. C. Walker, Chester Jungbluth, Ernest Jungbluth, A. A. Walter, Chris McGinn, Edgar DeHart, Fred Smith, Wilson Smith, Wood Jarman, Richard Jarman, Lyle Walter, L. O. Lenz, Orville Meischke, Arnie Mace, sr., Orville Kellar, Reed Grubb, H. W. Hubbard, E. R. Carpenter, E. H. Medcalf, James Butts, Charles Grimes, Orville Svatos, Pete Brown and Clarence Wyant. Elevators were furnished by Vernon Harley and Les Leiswald. Many businessmen and others who were unable to help with the work gave money to pay for dinners for the men at the cafes. There being $12 more than was needed for the meals, it was decided to start a community emergency fund. It is hoped that money may be added to the fund by home talent entertainment and other ways during the winter. Mr. Richards has been ill and was in a Sioux City hospital for several weeks. He is home now but unable to work.

caused by tax equalization last year, no democrat seemed a serious threat to the present GOP dominance of the statehouse in Lincoln. Some political observers said that Gov. Robert Crosby has been the scapegoat for all this. With him defeated in the U.S. senate primary, the angry voters have subsided and aren't looking for any more scalps. This is said to be true in several legislative races also where the incumbents, with a few exceptions, seem to be weathering the storm.

University Budget

The University of Nebraska is asking a 25 percent increase in the part of its budget which comes from the state general fund—supported by state property tax money. It wants an $18,830,299 general fund budget, or $3.8 million above the $15 million it got for the current two-year period. From tuition, fees, federal funds, and its share of the building fund levies, the University would have well over $37 million to spend. The University's new chancellor, Clifford Hardin, explained these reasons for the requested increase: 1. The necessity to pay higher salaries to topflight faculty members to keep the core of a high type University staff. 2. Plans for a "short course" in agriculture for boys who don't plan to go to college. 3. Placing more emphasis on the freshman English program. 4. Money for developing the college of agriculture and the college of medicine at Omaha. 5. A half-million dollars alone is slated for maintenance of new buildings.
