

Letters to Editor

More on Dances

Lynch, Nebr.

Dear Editor: Reference: Letter on the Hal-lowe'en dance.

Mrs. Glenn White asks, "Has your town gotten so far from the commandments of God that your kids don't know that time-after-time in the Bible—Catholic or Protestant—we are commanded to keep the sabbath day holy?"

I agree that it is about time that we began to keep the sabbath holy, but I have just finished checking the commandment in the Bible and it says: "Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy . . . the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God."

Your calendar will tell you Saturday, not Sunday, is the seventh day of the week. The world's leading historians and astronomers tell us that the weekly cycle has not been broken. I have searched the Bible from cover-to-cover and have not been able to find a single text telling us that we should keep the first day of the week holy, or that God ever changed His sabbath day.

Mrs. White continues, "How long is God going to withhold His anger at us as a community or nation where sabbath desecration is so common?" And Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wadsworth suggest, in an answering letter, "We ought to push a campaign to abandon such practices."

I'm thankful I live in a country where anyone can "push a campaign" whenever he wants to, but I hope I do not detect an inclination to the present trend of calling upon the strong arm of civil law to further religious aims. People come to this country in the first place to escape just such a thing, and our constitution forbids it.

By living a consecrated life we may lead thousands to the Saviour, but all the force in the world will never drive anyone into the Kingdom.

Sincerely,
D. T. HAWLEY

Dear Mr. Stewart: Enclosed is a Drew Pearson clipping giving the truth about Sen. Joe McCarthy. What bumps me up is his fraudulent income tax return. I've paid to get some protection from such scoundrels but don't get it.

Weather down here is ideal—or better. Got the Frontier today, so I know everything.
