Doc Gilligan Backed Statistics Law

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS, Retired, Former Editor The Frontier

MARION, IND .- That Miss O'Malley's many | years of service recording births and deaths in Holt county have received official recognition is gratifying to her friends.

It was an O'Neill citizen who had much to do with bringing about the vital statistics law in Nebraska. The late Dr. J. P. Gilli-Prairieland Talker at that time was city clerk of O'Neill, so thus became the first registrar for the county. Leaving O'Neill for a time in 1910, I asked Miss O'Malley if she would take over the registrar's work, which she consented to do and continues to do to this day.

The sun came from the Orient this morning to dominate the Hoosier scene after many days being in hiding out beyond a cloud-robed sky. So the blue above bathed in sunlight spreads across a frost-bitten world. Going out into the bright cold morning there came an urge to walk down to the river. Brief December days and lengthened shadows of night had spread a floor of ice from shore to shore and the early morning sun painted a picture in gold on that floor, gray and cold. And then memories of the long ago when the "bunch" went to Carlon's lake and cut circles on the ice with their skates. But this morning I stood in reverent awe among the trees on the brink of that ice-bound river, trees reaching nude arms heavenword as if to express to some great unknown out about the blue overhead what I alone felt as I looked upon the majestic picture bathed in sunlight. No, I am not a sun worshiper but a worshiper of the Being Whose hand hung the sun in its appointed place and Who gives to earth dwellers a glimpse of the Infinite in scenes of nature.

If north-Nebraska patriots want to retain passenger train service they will have to get busy and turn their travels trainward. They might help by calling the attention of the postal department to the risk of conveying the mails by truck.

My friend, Ralph Leidy, now down in sunny Arkansas, apparently accepts the word of a Washington newspaper guy who is kept busy dodging libel suits. But maybe Ralph can tell us just what the senate to hang-figuratively speaking-Senator McCarthy. The senate uproar over the disgraceful affair spells the answer to the November election returns. From the stories that came out of Washington, it was anybody's guess what it was all about, but prairieland patriots trust that those 44 democrats and 22 republicans feel that their wounded senatorial dignity has been properly avenged.

A bulky book presents some literary offerings selected from the works of 105 living authors comprising what the compiler calls "The World's Best." As literature it is commonplace, the stories -some boring, some take your attention; current history informative; science and philosophy chilling; poetry verging on the mystic. We are in a bomb-racked age, not a poetic age. . . A Hoosier patriot was fined by the judge $1 and costs for being drunk and $75 and costs for driving when drunk. He was not driving but sleeping when the highway patrolman took over. . . Counterfeit twoand four-bit coins are in circulation in the community. . . Veteran cow men at the national livestock show in Chicago, Ill., with their prize packages of beef on the hoof were chagrined when 15-year-old girls walked off with the blue ribbons decorating their steers. Ardyce Harding of Franklin, Nebr., had the prizewinning Hereford steer. Barbara Clausen of Spencer, Ia., had the prizewinning Shorthorn. . . The ancients may not have put on "national livestock shows," but they had flocks and herds that put our big ranchers in the piker class in comparison. A raiding tribe in 1452 B.C., overwhelmed another tribe and the booty included 675 thousand sheep, 72 thousand beeves, 71 thousand donkeys-and all the women and girls. . . American motor car owners are paying annually four billion dollars in taxes, which is supposed to be for the maintenance of the nation's highways.

Farmers basking in the exalted strata of science at the nation's capital say they have discovered how to control bloat in cows. Well, we "controlled" it when a cow got into the cabbage patch and blew up like a balloon by putting half of a package of soda down her. And when a young calf puffed up it was deflated by sticking a knife in a spot that left no permanent Newspaper men expose-not defend or excuse -crime or criminals. But somehow even the callous-tanned hide of a newspaper guy is pierced by the story of that young fellow from Texas, who held up a bank at Scottsbluff. He is one of a family of 10 children and he said he wanted to help his father but could not find a job that would enable him to help the family. The lure of idle money in that bank was the answer, he thought, to his desire. His story may have touched the judge in federal court in Lincoln, though courts are bound by the law to deal as the law directs with criminals brought before them. The bank got the stolen money back, the young man admits his mistake and these extenuating circumstances may have had a bearing on the light sentence imposed. And if the young man's seven-year prison sentence is computed on the basis of the Hiss term of confinement he may be set at liberty so he can do as he hopes to toward helping the homefolks.

In the absence of a sublime religious faith most men are cowards. Life blooms or withers from what comes day-by-day along the way-the rose grows among thorns, and joy and pain come to all living. Adversity lurks beside prosperity and we are either brave or cowardly. A troubled soul in a distant city drank the fatal hemlock and lies dead because he was a coward, who would not face and overcome life's difficulties. The world can do without him, but what of those two little boys left fatherless and motherless?
