

Ex - West Pointer Turned Clergyman to Speak Here

A former West Point cadet-turned-priest will be the principal speaker in connection with day of recollection services scheduled Sunday, March 27, by the Knights of Columbus, Charles Carroll of Carrollton council 701.

Rev. John P. Markoe, S.J., Creighton university (Omaha) mathematics instructor, will speak at the three masses on Sunday morning at St. Patrick's Catholic church, also and 2 and 3 o'clock sessions on Sunday afternoon, and again at the evening devotions.

Father Markoe is regarded as one of the most active faculty members at Creighton, a Jesuit university.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., Father Markoe was graduated from the U.S. military academy at West Point in 1914. He is one of the few graduates of West Point who has been ordained a priest.

He played left end on the army team for three years prior to his graduation. Among his teammates were President Eisenhower and General Omar Bradley.

Father Markoe, an all-American on some football selections, was a battery mate of Bob Neyland, recent Tennessee coach, on the West Point baseball team.

From 1914 to 1917 he served with the army on the Mexican border. Then he entered St. Stanislaus seminary, Florissant, Mo., to train for the Jesuit priesthood. He was ordained in 1928.

After ordination, Father Markoe came to the faculty of Creighton for a short time. He taught at Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis.; St. Louis university, St. Louis, Mo.; Regis college, Denver, Father Markoe ... served on Mexican border.

Colo., and the University of Detroit before returning to Creighton university in 1946.

He helped organize the DePortes club in Omaha.

In February, 1951, he received an award from the Urban league of Omaha for distinguished service in recognition of his efforts to advance racial relations.

In December, 1953, Gov. Robert Crosby of Nebraska appointed Father Markoe to a 12-man human relations committee to recommend measures it believes necessary to bring about better human relations.
