Pasture Shortage
Acute Situation

Sandhills range market report, issued last week by the Sandhills Cattle association at Valentine: "The lack of moisture, strong winds and blowing sand and dirt has made cattlemen in Western Nebraska begin to wonder what will happen if mother nature does not smile with showers in the near future. Grass in most areas is making progress despite the adverse weather conditions."

"However, in a few localities in the outer fringe of the range area, it is dry to the point where grass isn't making enough growth. Ranchers feel they will not be able to get feed until it rains. The entire region needs a general rain and needs it in the near future."

"Due to adverse weather conditions runs at auctions in the drier areas have been strong the last couple of weeks. Cattle offered have met with ready demand with prices holding steady to weak on stockers and feeders. Cow prices have been off, with cow and calf pairs meeting limited demand."

"There is still some demand from feeders in the corn belt wanting replacement cattle but local demand for stocker cattle has reached an all time low for this spring due to the uncertainty of future weather conditions."
