Learn Jefferson's 10 Commandments—

The Holt County Fair, which is to be August 17, 18, 19 and 20, was discussed at a recent meeting of the Victory Boys' and Girls' 4-H club.

The treasurer, Brenda Colman, made a report of $32.27 in the treasury.

A general meeting was held on Monday, July 18, at the IOOF hall in Inman. At this meeting we discussed plans for local achievement day, the fair and county achievement day. Members heard a report by Sharon Michaelis on her trip to judging day at Bassett.

The leader read to members of the 10 commandments written by Thomas Jefferson. They are so simple that they could be made a part of everyday living.

The meeting was then adjourned with the 4-H prayer.—By Ned Kelley, reporter.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Dear Mr. Dearborn:

I am glad to learn that the United States Department of Agriculture and the National Safety Council are again co-sponsoring National Farm Safety Week.

I feel sure that the eleven previous observances of National Farm Safety Week have provided a sound base on which to plan a twelfth observance, July 24-30, 1955. However, much obviously needs to be done to acquaint all farm people with the size of the farm accident problem. A death toll of 14,000 farm residents each year is a tragic loss to the nation.

The twelfth observance of National Farm Safety Week will be successful if each farm resident realizes the fact that his safety is in his own hands, and that he owes it to himself, to his family and to his community to adopt safe attitudes and habits.

The experts assert that the most important way of putting farm safety principles into effect is for the farmer, himself, to make a safety inventory of his home, his machinery, his equipment, his actions, and his attitudes. Once he develops the attitude that farming the safe way is also farming the right way, the accident toll will be greatly reduced. This seems logical to me.

My warm greetings go, on the occasion of this twelfth observance of National Farm Safety Week, to all organizations and individuals who have helped make the Week a success in the past. It is my sincere hope that they, and many others, will take an active part in making the 1955 observance of the Week a genuine life-saving event.

My greetings also go to every farmer in the United States, to whom I would say: Your safety is in your hands. Please be careful for the sake of your nation and your loved ones.

Sincerely,

Dwight D. Eisenhower

'Doc' Middleton
Roamed Keya Paha

Outlaws Preyed on Settlers

By DR. JAMES C. OLSON,
Supt. State Historical Society

The county with one of the most meloious—and at the same time most frequently mispronounced—names in Nebraska, is Keya Paha, located north of the Niobrara river between Boyd and Cherry counties. The name comes from a Dakota Indian expression meaning "turtle hill."

The Keya Paha region was outside the main stream of travel and early settlement, and occupation of the area occurred relatively late. One of the early points of interest was Mead's tavern, located on the Niobrara river. Nebraska History for June, 1953, contains a most interesting article by Harry B. Robinson and Nellie B. Hulshizer, "Pioneering on the Niobrara at Meadville." From this one gets an excellent picture of early activity along the Niobrara.

The early history of the county is enlivened with tales of famous outlaws, including Kid Wade and Doc Middleton, both of whom frequented the area that is now Keya Paha county. Outlaws preyed upon the ranchers who were among the earliest permanent residents of the county.

Keya Paha originally was part of Brown county. The Niobrara was an important argument for dividing the county, however, and finally in 1884, after the voters living north of the river had voted overwhelmingly in favor of separation,

The new county had a vigorous courtseat fight with every little community trying for the honor. Altogether, 15 separate places were on the ballot contesting for the countyseat and this election was only a preliminary skirmish in the contest for the official location. Finally the choice was reduced to two, the town of Burton and the site of the present Springview. In an election held March 25, 1885, Springview received 494 votes and Burton 405. Building on the site began immediately after the election and went forward rapidly, although it was some time before the county was able to erect a courthouse. In the interim a residence was used as a temporary courthouse.

Keya Paha county is one of the few counties in Nebraska which does not have a railroad. The county's population has always been small and, interestingly enough, the first census return for the county, that of 1890, gave the largest population the county has ever had. The population then was 3,920. Between that date and 1940, it fluctuated somewhat between 3,000 and 3,500. In 1940, the population was 3,235. By 1950, it had fallen to 2,160.

Lighting in Home Should Be Planned

Lighting is an important part of your home and should be planned as carefully as other furnishings.

When you plan your lighting, consider what different types of lights will do for certain rooms.

General or all-over lighting lets you see the entire room in a soft way. It increases the feeling of spaciousness and brings the room to life. Specific lighting gives the amount of light needed for various activities. It creates a feeling of variety, rhythm and emphasis.

Bright light is stimulating, so you'll want to use it in places where you want to call forth energy. Use more wattage in rooms with dark colored walls because dark colors absorb light.

Light high in the room seems formal, whereas light below the eye level seems friendly and draws people together. It has a flattering effect on people, too.

Diffused light from a number of sources will make a room more interesting and comfortable than one central light.

First Brood of Borers Scheduled

"Many fields of corn are badly infested with the first brood of corn borers," according to Don Engel, Antelope county agricultural agent. "During the past week I have checked several fields, and find that they are fairly well secluded in the stalk.

"No chemical will reach these insects now. In about 10 to 14 days the second brood of mothers will be active laying eggs in these same and other fields. Watch for egg masses on the under side of leaves. When you find 50 masses per 100 stalks, control measures should be taken. Spray with ½ pound of actual DDT per acre in at least 50 gallons of water.

"Not only does the corn borer attack corn but he also likes flowers. One nice bed of gladioli was found to be infested during the week. It's discouraging, to say the least," he added.
