Table-Pounding Forecast

LINCOLN — An October 25 hearing by the board of control over the firing of George Morris, men's reformatory superintendent, will be stormy and of the table-pounding variety.

Last week, the board, which governs state institutions, detailed reasons why it fired Morris and set October 25 to hear the ousted reformatory head.

The board said Morris made statements "derogatory" to the board. The statements, the board said, "created a situation which hampered the efficient operation of the state reformatory and other penal institutions."

Further, the board charged Morris "refused to cooperate or even consult with Penal Director B. B. Albert with reference to the operation of the state reformatory."

Wagner said he will not "tolerate a kangaroo hearing" by the board.

The attorney said the hearing will determine "whether, by statehouse standards, the right of free speech is automatically and involuntarily taken from one accepting state employment."

The board replied that Wagner is attempting to "pre-judge the hearing."

In a statement, the board said it is "not interested in making a political fanfare of this hearing and will conduct it in accordance with the office of attorney general."

The board statement also made note of the fact that Wagner "was the defeated republican candidate for governor at the last election."

Further, the board said, "misconduct, which has been used in the case of Mr. Morris" is one of the legal reasons for dismissing a board employee. It said it feels there is "ample evidence to substantiate this charge."

Contacted at Falls City, Morris said since his dismissal the reformatory has been converted into a "junior penitentiary."

Meanwhile, the new superintendent of the reformatory, M. L. Wimberly, said all inmates involved in the September 9 riot at the institution have been cleared from the segregation building.

Anderson Announces—

State Senator Lester Anderson of Aurora says he is very much in the running for the Congressional post now held by Rep. R. D. Harrison of Norfolk.

The 60-year old Anderson, a hotel owner, presently is serving his fifth term in the legislature.

Anderson said he is a "conservative republican" and that he will run against Harrison in the GOP primary next year.

Says Anderson: "I've always been interested in national politics, and I believe in the Taft policies and Taft principles."

In 1952, Anderson was a delegate to the national GOP convention and said he favored nomination of the late Sen. Robert Taft for the presidency.

Anderson said he opposes foreign aid, favors national and civil defense, and has nothing against Harrison personally.

"He's a nice man," Anderson said.

But the Aurora senator said Harrison did not go along with bills in congress for better highways.

Autopsy Law Inadequate?—

Dr. E. A. Rogers, Nebraska's health director, says a bum, alcoholic, drifter or person without a solid background "could be bumped off without too much difficulty in Nebraska."

Rogers said lack of law to require an autopsy into deaths unattended by physicians make it possible for "many possible murders to go undetected."

Death certificates filed with the state division of vital statistics often are open to question, Rogers said. He said, "We can many times give examples of deaths that might have been caused by foul play."

Autopsies are expensive, Rogers said, "and a person who is found lying dead in an alley is often pronounced dead by law enforcing authorities, who make no attempt to determine the cause of death."

"Such deaths are often merely attributed to old age, a bad heart, exposure or something else," Rogers said.

The health director said autopsies are highly desirable "when there is question on the causes surrounding a death."

"If a medical examining board could be set up to perform autopsies more inexpensively," he said, "we would be able to more accurately determine the cause of death in questionable cases."
