Spend Night With Bears

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE, Homemaking Editor

Thanksgiving dinner wouldn't be complete without hot yeast rolls on the table. You may want to bake them ahead of time yourself, but if other preparations for the big feast take up all your time, you can get a good selection of enriched rolls at your grocer's. Or brown 'n serve rolls may be your dish. They, too, come in a wide variety of shapes and forms. Whatever type you choose, remember that yeast rolls give a dinner a really festive touch. If you like hard rolls, select crusty, sesame seed topped rolls. Poppy-seeded Vienna rolls are also crisp and crunchy. For a softer, flakier roll, choose cloverleaf, bowknot, parkerhouse or crescent rolls.

Stuff your Thanksgiving turkey with a traditional oyster stuffing. Wash one pint oysters thoroughly. Beat one egg slightly. Add oysters, eight cups enriched bread cubes, one teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper and 1/2 teaspoon celery salt to beaten egg. Mix together lightly.

It's a safe bet that your Thanksgiving dinner will contain all the elements of a well-balanced meal. But what about your planning for fall meals? The easiest way to insure your family getting all the nutrients they need is to follow the basic seven outline. Every day plan for each member of the family to have one or more servings of leafy, green or yellow vegetables, one or more servings of citrus fruits, tomatoes or raw cabbage and two or more servings of potatoes and other vegetables and fruits. Plan, too, from one pint to one quart of milk daily, plus cheese or milk products and one or more servings of meat, poultry, fish or eggs. Schedule three or more eggs a week for each person in the family. Serve table fats daily. Three or more servings a day of enriched, restored or whole grain bread, flour and cereals round out the important basic seven.

5,000-Mile Trip in 16 Days

Mrs. Charles Gifford of Dorsey wins our three-months' subscription today.

Dorsey, Nebr.

Dear Blanche: It has been a long time since I wrote you. Have been so busy all summer. At the last minute before school, we decided to take a trip West to see my husband's mother, stepfather, four sisters and two brothers and their families in Washington and Oregon states. We were gone 16 days and drove about 5,000 miles.

Besides seeing some of our friends and other relatives, we saw quite a lot of scenery of which I will try to give the highlights.

We took U.S. highway 20 from O'Neill and spent the night at Hot Springs, S.D. We went swimming at the edge of the Black Hills. Sunday we drove through the Black Hills to Spearfish, S.D. Our three children, Larry, Janet and Ray Allen, enjoyed seeing the deer, buffalo and antelope. Janet especially enjoyed the Old Stockade and we had buffalo-burgers for breakfast. Other points of interest were Crystal Cave, Terry peak ski lift, Spearfish canyon, Wind cave, Pigtail bridge and the Passion Play that night.

Leaving Spearfish the next morning, we went on highway 14 past Devil's tower to Sheridan, Wyo., on highway 87 to Billings, Mont., and highway 10 to Helena, Mont. It was a beautiful drive—around 600 miles.

The next morning we drove 23 miles on highway 10 to Cour d'Alene, Ida., past beautiful mountains, lakes and harvesting fields to Spokane, Wash. (Here there was a damper in our trip. My husband had to have a tooth pulled.)

We then drove to Coulee dam and on to Brewster, Wash., where my husband's relatives live in the beautiful Okanogan, Wenatchee and Yakima fruit valleys. There are lumber mills and I, for one, don't care for those big logging trucks when I'm driving through.

We spent a week there, then south on highway 97 to Columbia river's beautiful drive with the dams, gorges and falls furnishing impressive scenery. On to Portland and Oregon City, Ore., here we spent the night with my uncle and his family.

We went on to a friend's the next day and on to the coast along the beautiful coast highway 101 to Weema Beach to Reepport, visiting several things, one being the Sea Lions cave. We left highway 101 on 38, going to 99 south to Roseburg where we spent the night and on to Crater lake. The lake is on the top of a 12,000-foot mountain. The water appears a beautiful shade of blue. The lake has a 20-mile shore line and has been formed by volcanic action.

The children got a big kick out of the animals and birds, especially the golden mantled squirrel which resembles a chipmunk. Leaving Crater lake we drove to Bend, Ore., and on across Oregon to the Idaho border. It was a good highway but, oh, the sagebrush (and they say Nebraska has wasteland). Next day after visiting my aunt and uncle at New Plymouth we drove to Yellowstone park and spent Sunday there. Oh, the sights and the mysterious wonders! Falls, canyons, springs, moose, antelope, deer, bears and buffalo. That night we slept in the park (with the next morning we started the bears) toward the east end, for home around 5 o'clock.

Had breakfast at Cody, home of Buffalo Bill. Going to Casper there wasn't much to see except alkali desert. We doubted if a grasshopper could live, but did see some antelope and Devil's Half Acre. Had dinner at Casper and supper at Gordon, getting back to O'Neill at 12:30 a.m., tired but happy.

That was an expression popular in the roaring twenties. The twenties also brought WJAG radio, now over 33 years young with a record of over 12,000 broadcasting days of public service broadcasting, under the same ownership.

NO OTHER RADIO STATION IN NEBRASKA CAN SAY THAT!
