Flash! Editor Erred on 53 Sundays Item

Each weekend a Frontier staffer descends to the basement to dig into dusty old files (they are bound volumes but naturally show their age). The staffer devotes several hours to perusing the old issues, gleaming bits of interest which are published each week in an editorial page feature titled "When You and I Were Young."

Sometimes the editor questions the readership value of the bits from out of the past.

In the January 5 issue in the 50 years ago section our gleamer came up with this line:

"The year just closed (1905) has had 53 Sundays, a circumstance that will never occur again during the lives of persons now living. One hundred ten years will pass before this arrangement of the calendar is again observed."

The foregoing paragraph was reproduced verbatim from the old files.

Last week's issue had not been in the mail long before the phone began ringing. The mail produced response, too.

Wrote Very Rev. Timothy O'Sullivan, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic church here:

"Dear Editor: I think anyone who will live through 1956 will have 53 Sundays for church-going and will not have to live 59 more years (until 2015). Kindly regards . . . sincerely yours."

From Mrs. James Lieb of Atkinson came this note:

"Dear Editor: Would like to call your attention to an article in today's (January 5) issue of The Frontier in the 50 years ago news. Your article stated there were 53 Sundays in 1905 and that 53 Sunday's in a year won't occur again for 110 years. If you will look at your 1956 calendar you will find this year (1956) has 53 Sundays."

The response to this incident confirms for the editor that "When You and I Were Young" enjoys a high readership and never again will the degree of interest in the gleanings from the past be questioned.

It Happened In NEBRASKA---

Once steamboat races were common on the Missouri, even though excessive steam pressures resulted in explosions and disaster. In the heat of the race, every possible combustible material was thrown into the boiler furnace to build up steam: Pitch, lard, butter — even whole sides of bacon!

Another picturesque scene long since gone is the colorful "bar room" of the Old West. Today Nebraska taverns are clean, wholesome — accepted by the community as well-regulated businesses.
