Innertube Stops Grinder Slips

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE, Homemaking Editor

As you press or put away dresses and jeans for the children, slip a handkerchief into the pockets. It will save time for both you and the children for nobody has to search for a clean handkerchief.

Got a broken garden rake? Don't throw it away! Attach the head to a wall and hang other garden tools neatly between the lines.

If you have trouble with a food grinder slipping, sliding or marinating the table or chair to which you have fastened it, slip a piece of inner tube on the table before fastening the food grinder.

If you're in a hurry to thaw a piece of frozen meat, slip it into a food saver bag, zip it up and run hot water on it. In no time it will be thawed out and the meat won't be harmed.

For dinner today or lunch to-night, how about serving these—

HAMBURGERS DELUXE

One pound ground beef, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 pound blue cheese, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons mayonnaise, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard.

Combine ground beef, salt and pepper and shape into eight thin patties. Combine remaining ingredients for stuffing. Place 1/4 of mixture between two patties and press together securely. Set regulator to broil. Place patties on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan and rack so the top of the patties is inches from the heat. When one side is browned, turn and finish cooking on the second side. Serves four.

"Mr. Wind" No. 1 Enemy

Dear Mrs. Pease: Did you ever open your writing box only to find that someone had used the last of your paper? That is what has happened to me, but as you had an appeal for letters in a recent Frontier, I'll write on anything this time.

I wonder if any of your readers have an unreasonable dislike for a thing they cannot control or change. With me, the wind is usually an enemy. In the winter I dread to hear it as it means roads heaped with impassable drifts by morning. Then the battle to get to school on time becomes a personal fight with the wind. If we get there in the morning, I keep a wary eye on the shifting snow throughout the day for it tells me that the wind is trying to imprison us in the schoolhouse for the night.

In the spring, my enemy whips the newly washed clothes around and around the lines until the tea towels are tight twists that must be patiently unwound so that they may dry. The wind may, if fancy strikes, bury the tiny lettuce seeds in their rows in the garden so deeply that they are smothered and die.

The summer wind dries out the garden flowers, burns the corn's green leaves, sears my face and blows my straw hat merrily across the hay meadow. It fills the house with fine dust and intense heat.

Then with the coming of fall, the leaves I've raked up so carefully are sent scattering back over the yard by the selfsame wind.

Of course, I realize "Mr. Wind" pumps the water to irrigate my garden and quench the thirst of the cattle. But still I dread waking to the howl of the wind through the tree tops.

Winter time is popcorn time at our house. Usually it is just buttered and salted but for a more festive corn we like this recipe for—

POPCORN BALLS

Two cups white sugar, one cup dark syrup, 1/2 cup sweet cream, a lump of butter.

Cook the mixture until it forms a soft ball in water. Pour over popped corn and form into balls.
