Academy Students Smile for Camera

Most St. Marians have been trying to produce their most charming smiles for the past two days. The photographer from O'Neill Photo company was here Tuesday and Wednesday to take pictures of all the various groups which make up the school's activities. In addition, the seniors have been having their traditional graduation pictures taken.

On Saturday, November 16, Sister Thoma, Sister Patricia, and Mrs. J. A. Arbutnot attended a picnic in Norfolk on "problems of retarded children."
Today (Thursday) several students will leave to attend the state music clinic in Lincoln. They will attend rehearsals on Friday and Saturday and perform in a concert Saturday evening. Those representing St. Mary's will be Ellen Lohaus and Jackie Arbutnot for chorus, and C. Ann Arbutnot for band. Sr. M. Constance, vocal director at St. Mary's, will travel to Lincoln Friday night and be present for the concert Saturday.
"Parents yearn for a comprehensive report of their children's scholastic abilities and potentialities," says Mother M. Agnesine, principal of St. Mary's academy, "and they want evidence that their child is getting as much as possible from his hours spent in school.

To provide this, the Iowa every-pupil tests of basic skills were administered to students of the 10th and 12th grades. The testing program measures the student's basic skill in fourteen important aspects of the four major basic skills—reading, wordstudy, basic language and basic arithmetic.
Results of these tests form a basis for individualizing instruction and increase the effectiveness of the school's educational program."
On November 13 and 14, the Otis intelligence tests were administered to the freshmen and juniors. From the results of these tests teachers have a fairer estimate of what the capabilities of each student are. Each student can then be encouraged to work up to his capabilities.

Mrs. Faye Pinkerman of Redbird spent the weekend caring for Wes Pinkerman, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Pinkerman.

Lack of Funds Is No Deterrent

LINCOLN—State Sen. Terry Carpenter heads a committee that is undertaking big things in the field of tax values.
His unicameral committee is making a study with a view towards presentation at the 1959 legislative session.
The psychological effect of such a study is great, Carpenter reported. It should produce better valuations, so the home owner won't get stuck further because of violations by big property owners, it was said.
An expected fight among committee members over procedure did not develop.
Sens. David Tews of Norfolk, John Funnell of Omaha and Fay Wood of Seward said they did not object to what was being done by Carpenter, but did want to be informed of action before they could read it in the newspapers.
Carpenter agreed to send copies of all correspondence to committee members so they would have background information for answering questions of constituents.

Another problem—that of money—was discussed. Carpenter said he was not going to let this stop the probe, if he had to pay costs out of his own pocket or make a public appeal for funds.
Many returns already have been changed, the Scottsbluff senator said, as a result of functioning of the committee.
The check in Saunders showed usual types of violations, according to Herrington.
No grain to feed a lot of cattle on hand March 1.
Low value on expensive heavy equipment.
Changes in values after the legal deadline, without the required penalty.
Incomplete tax returns.
Undervaluation of buildings on leased land, or complete disregard for listing any value.
Some taxpayers reported valuations truthfully, but assistant assessors put down lower ones.
Much irrigation equipment was listed, but there was no difference in valuation between dry land and irrigated land.
There may be another move in the legislature to try to exempt all household goods from taxation. State Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington said assessing these items, which include jewelry consumes 75 percent of the budget of a county assessor, and the revenue is only two percent of the total tax values.

In addition, the tax chief said 50 percent of the complaints lodged with assessors come from values on household goods.
