BEFORE and NOW

When the Province of British Columbia celebrates its 100th birthday all during 1958, many of the activities will be centered in the bustling Provincial hub city of Vancouver. Transportation means much to British Columbia because the railroads opened the Canadian west to settlers and one of the highlights of the 1958 British Columbia celebration will be the exhibit of the world's only museum train; a six car train which has been restored to the original splendor of a century ago by Canadian National Railways. Just 75 years ago 14-ox teams labored hard and long to clear the land on which the enterprising city of Vancouver now stands. The picture above was made in 1882 as workmen and ox teams cleared the site where the imposing Marine Building now stands. FNS
