SMA's 'Penny' Play pleases Audiences

A publicity man, a fake author and a dreamy-eyed school girl who aspired to the movies carried the theme of the story in the St. Mary's academy junior class play, "Don't Take My Penny". The three-act comedy was presented Sunday and Monday evenings with six changes of cast.

Penny Pringle (Carol Hoffman) and Rita Jensen) was certain Mr. Day, a talent scout and writer, would choose her for the leading role in his movie. Mr. Day, however, never appeared until the last act. Meanwhile, he was impersonated by Kerry (Larry Wanser and James Richter). The impersonation by Penny's boyfriend was intended to induce Penny to give up the movie aspirations.

Penny's mother, Lydia Pringle (Jackie Arbutnot), was preoccupied with a social whirl and lectures. Penny's brother, Mark (Clarence Longcor and Michael Langan), wanted to be a farmer but the mother, Lydia, and father, Caleb (Gene Turner), never took time to listen.

Sally (Renae Hoffman), the Pringles' maid and a former child starlet, was planted in the by Mr. Day, but, in the course of Pringle home to be "discovered" events, she fell in love with Penny's brother.

Penny returned to tennis; Sally prepared to marry Mark.

Norman Porter (Keith McKim) was the publicity agent; Gregg, Kerry's pal, was played by Ronnie Clark, who burst the sides of the audience when he paraded as a female model; Joanna, Gregg's girl friend, was played by Connie Heelan.

Sister M. Constance directed the production.
