

Burial at Butte for 'Montana Jack'

Funeral services for John W. ("Montana Jack") Sullivan, 81, of Butte, Mont., who gained renown in professional circles from coast-to-coast as a young man, were held at 9:30 a. m., Tuesday, October 28, at a requiem mass at St. Patrick's Catholic church in Butte, Mont., with Rt. Rev. M. M. English, officiating.

Pallbearers were Paul Cannon, Tom Ryan, Al Brown, Ross McGinnis, Fred Green and John Harrington. A rosary was said at 8 p. m., Monday, October 27.

The late Mr. Sullivan, who was born in April, 1877, in Houghton, Mich., moved as a child to O'Neill with his parents. His parents were among the first homesteaders. He was reared and learned electricity here. This trade later led him to become the city electrician of Butte under two mayors, in addition to operating the old Sullivan Electric company in Butte for many years.

In 1895 he went to Anaconda with the late Judge J. V. Dwyer, one-time Butte district judge. He joined a brother, the late Phillip Sullivan, and "Montana Jack" became a professional boxer.

On December 19, 1903, Jack Munroe of Butte stayed four rounds with the then heavyweight champion, Jim Jeffries, in an exhibition match. Immediately afterwards, Munroe's manager offered $100 to anyone who could stay four rounds with him. Jack accepted the challenge and was on his way as a pro boxer, although he also continued as an electrician.

One of "Jack's" most talked about fights occurred February 12, 1906, with Stanley Ketchel in the old Casino theatre. After 20 rounds the referee called the fight a draw although many ringsiders felt that Mr. Sullivan had won the battle. Sullivan chased Ketchel but was never able to catch him for a rematch.

On February 22, 1908, Ketchel ascended to the middleweight throne.

Mr. Sullivan continued fighting for several years on both coasts. He fought as a middleweight, but met with light heavyweights and even heavyweights.

When he retired from the ring, Mr. Sullivan was employed by a late uncle, Mike Sullivan, at the Sullivan Electric. Later he took over the business and operated it until about eight years ago.

Mr. Sullivan's death was the second this year among the "Three Musketeers of Athens", as he, John Linquist and Jack's brother, Dan, often referred to themselves. The three met in Athens, Greece, at the 1906 Olympic games. Wrestling was on the United States team. The friendliness of the Sullivans was instrumental in Mr. Linquist's coming to Butte from his native Sweden. He had participated for his native country in several Olympic games as a marathon runner. Mr. Linquist died in June.

"Montana Jack's" survivors include a sister, Mary Sullivan; brothers—Jerry T., Daniel, and a nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bukrich, all of Butte; several cousins.
